QUAY'S HAND HELPING THE CONFERENCE

He Visits Roosevelt and Talks Strike, Among Other Matters.

GIVES HIS HOST SOME POINTERS

Attorney General Knox Only Cabinet Member to Attend Today's Meeting.

OPERATORS EN ROUTE TO THE CAPITAL CITY

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
603 Fifteenth St., N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.

That Senator Quay is the person responsible for the efforts being made by President Roosevelt to end the coal strike, was the principal development today. The senator arrived early this morning, and during the forenoon made his appearance at the temporary White House, where he evidently was expected, and was at once admitted to see the president.

The conference lasted more than an hour, and after the senator reappeared he declined to answer a question bearing upon the object of his visit.

The senator went to the department of justice, where he conferred for a while with Attorney General Knox and then left for Philadelphia. Mr. Knox, Secretary Cortelyou and others cognizant of the object of the senator's unexpected arrival were equally uncommunicative.

Quay's Former Meeting With Him.

That strike matters brought Quay here explains the object of his mysterious visit to the president about two weeks ago when Roosevelt was starting upon his western trip. Quay boarded the special train at Trenton, N. J., and rode for about an hour with the chief executive. He is placed in the possession of President Roosevelt all of the material facts regarding the controversy between the miners and their employers and urged the president to take decisive action before the distress caused by the strike became widespread.

When the president's injured leg compelled him to return here the advice of Senator Quay recurred to him, and he promptly took the matter up and consulted with Attorney General Knox about it.

The president directed Mr. Knox to communicate with the senator at once, and as Quay was at his home in Beaver, the attorney general left for that town Sunday night, where he had a conference with the senator on Monday.

The senator was kept fully posted on the situation over the long distance telephone, and in response to a request from the president, he came here this morning for another talk before the conference tomorrow.

Opinions of Gompers and Hays.

In speaking of the conference tomorrow President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor this afternoon said:

"I am very much pleased. Neither side can disregard this invitation. Mr. Mitchell, for the miners, had made every overture for peace and has offered to submit all matters in controversy to arbitration, not only before the strike occurred, but dur-

RACE PREJUDICE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON FOREIGNERS

PLYMOUTH SCENE OF DISTURBANCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 2.—The following telegram was sent by President Mitchell to the three anthracite district secretaries today:

"There has been placed in my hands indisputable evidence of an attempt on the part of the operators to create discord among our non-English speaking members through the circulation of pamphlets containing malicious and dastardly attacks upon the officers of the organization, and by an effort to arouse race prejudices. These circulars will be printed in all the foreign languages and will be signed by a person designating himself 'A Friend.' Immediately notify all district and local officers to be on their guard. It is especially important that our non-English speaking brothers be informed of this conspiracy.

"JOHN MITCHELL."

The mining town of Plymouth, which has been free from disturbances since the strike began, was the scene of much disorder today. Mobs surrounded the Sterling and North American washeries and Sheriff Jacobs, being unable to disperse them, summoned the military.

Eleven Men Arrested.

Col. Dougherty sent three companies of the Ninth regiment to the scene and they arrested 11 men, charged with rioting. They were brought before Magistrate Pollock of this city, who held them in $1,000 bail each for trial at court.

A strong guard was placed over the washeries tonight. They are expected to resume operations tomorrow.

SCRANTON, PA., Oct. 2.—It is now an almost certainty that John Mullen, the non-union man who was run over by a trolley car at Smithville last night, was stunned or killed and then placed on the track. His own razor, with blood on the blade, was found near the spot and no cuts on the razor could have made were to be found on the body. It is supposed he was attacked and drew the razor to defend himself. Coroner Berge says positively it was a case of murder.

MT. CARMEL, PA., Oct. 2.—Owing to a crowd of unknown men hurling rocks at the deputies at Righter's colliery last night, a company of soldiers was posted at that mine today, while another company was taken to Shamokin on a special train to prevent pickets from stopping non-unionists from going to work at the Reading and other collieries.

Growth of Defense Fund.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Oct. 2.—The collections of the big defense fund for the anthracite coal mine strikers, created a record-breaking business for the money order department of the Indianapolis postoffice for the quarter ending yesterday. The report shows that the receipts for the last three months this year were $865,461. The receipts for the corresponding period last year were $512,661. Postoffice officials say the increase is due largely to the business coming from the headquarters of the mine workers. As high as $25,000 a day has been cashed for Secretary Wilson of the miners.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Oct. 2.—Twenty-five hundred miners in the employ of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, on orders from the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, district of Alabama, suspended work today on account of the refusal of the operators to collect for the union the $1 per week assessment, made on all union miners for the benefit of the anthracite strikers in Pennsylvania.

BIG RALLY OF CITIZENS MEN IN EAST END

RING GOT MANY HOT BROADSIDES

ISSUES OF THE FIGHT PLAINLY PRESENTED

One of the biggest political meetings of the campaign was held at Kenwood lawn, East End, by the Citizens party last night. The dancing platform at the lawn will hold more than 2,000. The part of the audience that was not seated was ranged in the side aisles, alongside the seated portion, exceeding it in number. There were enough Italians to make up a big audience, as was demonstrated by the applause that greeted a speech made in Italian.

The meeting was preceded by a big parade in different divisions, each division traversing different parts of the district. There was a band with every division and red fire was burned.

The meeting was not only [illegible]est of the campaign in the East En[illegible] it it was said at the lawn that it was the biggest ever held there.

Keynotes by W. B. Rodgers.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Cadwallader Evans, the chairman of the Citizens party's executive committee. W. B. Rodgers was nominated for chairman and in taking the chair said:

"The people of the East Liberty valley are not going to be gold bricked again, nor do they intend to permit the city to become the victim of a political deal. On February 11 we elected as controller of this city an honest man—John B. Larkin. He is a Democrat, but we Republicans united with his party in placing a man in the controller's office who would do his duty.

"We are now moving against the court house. We want to put into the controller's office some one like Larkin, who will scrutinize all bills presented. Who ever heard of the present incumbent turning down a bill? We also want men in the commissioners' office who will act, and who will save the people money, and a delinquent tax collector who will collect taxes and not turn away men who want to pay taxes. We are moving against the court house to clean it out. (A voice—"And we will.")

The People Will Be Heard.

"All over the county I have heard the same thing. All over the county I have seen the look that is in your faces. When the people make up their minds to do business, they will do business."

Select Councilman Douglas was received with great applause. In part Mr. Douglas said: "It took only one year to destroy the Flinn machine—a machine that required 20 years and more in its construction. The machine was well oiled and ran very smoothly for many years, but recently Flinn took hold of the steering gear. He slipped a cog somewhere, for the machine has been going to pieces ever since."

The speaker charged that ex-Senator Flinn had called on the managers of railway, street car, telephone and telegraph companies and other corporations, and solicited support for the machine ticket, and that he had threatened many employes, intimating to them that they would lose their places if they failed to support the ticket. The speaker appealed to the audience to condemn such tactics and said he hoped that the employes of those corporations would not be misled or cajoled into supporting the ring.

Echoes of the First Reform Gun.

Councilman Thomas M. Brown said that the first gun of the present movement against the machine was fired in the municipal campaign in the Twentieth ward, and the sound of that gun had spread until the echoes were now heard all over the county. "We are here to stand up for our sacred rights," he said, "the very bedrock of the Declaration of Independence. The political despotism that has controlled this county has trampled every principle of the great declaration under foot."

Councilman D. J. Bole made a warm speech that was greeted with applause. He referred to the victory of last February, forecasted a victory in this campaign and predicted that next February a united Citizens party would carry the municipal election and name the next recorder of Pittsburg.

Councilman George W. McNeil made a brief speech. He asked his hearers to compare the platforms of the two parties and to scan the names of the candidates on the respective tickets. "The topic everywhere is reform," he said, "and if you can show me one man on the Citizens ticket that has a blemish I will quit and not ask you to vote the ticket."

Pittsburgh's Importance in Congress.

H. Kirke Porter, Citizens candidate for congress, said that the present movement ought to sweep away those who had made a trade of politics. He asked if the audience realized the importance of Allegheny county in the United States; that it would send four congressmen out of 376 to the house of representatives, 1 per cent of the voice of the whole population of the United States. Everybody was aware how the county had forged ahead in material things and was now the center of attraction to the railroad magnates of the land. The county had come to the front in many ways, in art, education and music; the population had increased from 555,000 in 1890 to 775,000 in 1900, and the four congressmen, therefore, should be men of business experience; this, he thought, the Citizens party's candidates had.

J. D. O'Neil, the Citizens candidate for recorder of deeds, said that a general cleaning out of the "court house gang" might be expected as the result of the coming election. Others who spoke were Marino Cancelliere, who was heard in English and Italian, and W. M. Randolph and Dr. W. D. Clinton, colored orators.

Editor Hearst for Congress.

RIDING THE HORSE TO WATER.

CENTRE COUNTY FACTIONS ARE HARMONIOUS

Pennypacker and Party Find Peace Reigns Up in Bellefonte.

BALLOON DUBBED PATTISON BOOM

VIALS OF SLANDER WELL BOTTLED UP

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 2.—Centre county, with its reunited Republican party, for a second time in three weeks today extended a hearty welcome to the next governor of Pennsylvania, Judge Pennypacker, and the next lieutenant governor, ex-Senator Brown. In the afternoon thousands met the candidates at the county fair grounds, and in the evening a great throng filled the court house and vigorously applauded the speakers, justifying predictions of the reunited leaders of both former factions that Centre county will be lined up in the Republican column on November 4 with a substantial majority for the whole ticket.

The hearty welcome accorded the candidates two weeks ago at the Centre Hall grangers' picnic, when all the old Quay and anti-Quay leaders joined in the demonstration of harmonious activity for the ticket, was repeated on a larger scale today and tonight.

A feature of the night meeting was the vigorous excoriation of the Pattison boomers and other villifiers of Pennsylvania by the trenchant candidate for lieutenant governor, William M. Brown.

A Fine Reception Committee.

Greatly pleased with the splendid reception tendered them at Williamsport and Montoursville, the candidates took a morning train for Bellefonte, where they were met by a committee including County Chairman Wilbur F. Reeder, Secretary of Agriculture John Hamilton, E. R. Chambers, Wilson L. Fleming, Col. W. F. Reynolds, Col. Austin Curtin and others. After a reception and luncheon at the Buch house Judge Pennypacker, W. M. Brown, Gen. Latta and J. Allan Leeds were driven to the fair grounds, where several thousand of Centre county's citizens met the candidates.

The party then viewed the races and a balloon ascension, someone facetiously dubbing the balloon "Pattison's boom."

From the fair grounds Judge Pennypacker was driven to the house of Edward R. Chambers, who entertained him at dinner.

The court house meeting was a rousing demonstration, a feature being the presence of a large delegation of State college students, who came in on a special train. Col. Reeder presided and in opening the meeting said there was no question of the Republican party carrying the county, and carrying it for the whole ticket, local and state.

Platforms Judged by Their Fruit.

There was a great burst of applause as Col. Reeder introduced Judge Pennypacker as an honest man, learned jurist and the next governor of Pennsylvania. When the applause had subsided Judge Pennypacker said:

It is an inspiration of itself to come to a town that has supplied three of the best of the long line of governors of this great state. I do not know how we are to determine as to the merits of the principles and the actions of parties unless we look at them as they are in life. It is little worth while to write down in platforms what are the views of the parties. Parties are to be judged as men are judged, by the fruits they bear. Don't forget, while they are suggesting to you that there ought to be a change in the government of this state, there are many other states where you can see Democracy in action.

He then referred to the Democratic states as politically insignificant and all in debt. He told how in those states voters were disfranchised, not only by laws but by constitutional amendments.

"Is life and liberty more safe in those states than you find them here?" he asked. In answering his own question he called attention to the fact that in some of those state conditions had reverted to a condition almost bordering on barbarism. He then reviewed the mismanagement of the Democratic party before the Civil war and compared it with the great work of the Republican party in fighting successfully through two great wars, building up the industries of the nation, developing commerce and trade, re-arranging the banking systems, establishing the national credit on a solid basis, and, in fact, progressing so wonderfully that even the Democrats are compelled to follow.

Brown Defends His State.

Candidate William M. Brown again corrected the misleading statements of Mr. Pattison regarding the disposal of the rapid transit franchises and his attacks upon the Republican organization, and, continuing, said:

Mr. Pattison makes many charges of bribery and corruption. If these are predicted upon his own personal knowledge, it is his duty to furnish the proper authorities, with the proofs upon which the charges may be substantiated. If they are based upon surmise and innuendo, then it is most unfortunate for our own state that a man of his standing should give utterance to them.

Dear old Pennsylvania! It is an unfortunate and lamentable fact that one whom you so signally honored should find his political fortunes in such straits, and the needs of his party so great, that in order to hide its own record upon all political questions, he must go up and down your lovely valleys and over your beautiful mountains with the rank poisonous smoke, while he pours from the vials of slander of all kinds of intemperate abuse of your fair fame until he seems to forget your virtues and can only see and expose your faults. He seems to rejoice in telling of your weakness and seeks to hide your greatness.

It is true, O Pennsylvania, that you have your faults. It is probable that some of your citizens whom you have called to positions of trust and honor have at times put aside the priceless crown of civic virtue and for the moment forgotten what was due to themselves, and to you; but it is the priceless heritage of your citizens to know that when one has proven false, a thousand have proven true; that your faults and weaknesses are but as sombre nodelnlis, found only in the shadow of the valley, while behind them tower your magnificent mountains of virture, liberty and independence.

O proud old Imperial Pennsylvania! You have little, indeed, to fear from the mud balls and shafts of calumny that are being hurled at you. Like another proud commonwealth,

CONGRESS NOMINEES TO BE HEARD TODAY

Court Rejects Democratic Certificate of Third District Citizens Candidates.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

HARRISBURG, PA., Oct. 2.—The Dauphin county court has fixed tomorrow as the date for a hearing on the objections filed by attorneys for the Allegheny county machine to the certificates of George Shiras III., H. Kirk Porter and James W. Brown, Citizens-Democratic candidates for congress in that county. Counsel have agreed to all the facts, so that it will not be necessary to call witnesses. William J. Brennen of Pittsburgh, who has charge of the case for the Citizens-Democratic nominees, says the argument will be brief.

Even if the court should throw out these certificates, as it did today those of Samuel L. Mawhinney and Benjamin F. Anderson, the Citizens-Democratic candidates in the Third Allegheny assembly district, its action cannot affect the nomination of any of these candidates by the Citizens party and will only serve to keep their names out of the Democratic column. In the Third Allegheny district the certificates of John Whitney and Onslow Gardner, who claimed to be the Democratic candidates, were sustained.

Consultations between counsel resulted in the shortening of the hearing in the Union party case. The consensus of opinion of persons who have been in court during the hearing, seems to be that both the Pennypacker and Pattison certificates will be rejected. Judge Simonton intimated today that there was no doubt of such intention with regard to the Pennypacker certificate.

The nomination papers of Gen. William H. Koontz of Somerset, the Union party candidate for senator in the Thirty-sixth district, composed of Bedford, Fulton and Somerset counties, were today rejected by Secretary Griest because they did not contain the requisite number of signatures.

MASS MEETING FOR MINERS ON SUNDAY

A mass meeting in the cause of the anthracite miners was last night called for Old City hall next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The call was issued by the Iron City Central Labor council of the American Federation of Labor. The council also approved the adoption of the plan in use in Philadelphia for collecting for the miners. A collector to make a door-to-door canvass will be appointed for each election district of the city.

It is proposed to make this mass meeting a big affair, and to start through it a popular subscription for the relief of the miners and their families.

The call for the meeting, embracing an appeal for early assistance, is addressed to "organized labor and the citizens of Allegheny and surrounding counties," and is signed by the following committee: George A. Dabney, W. J. Kelly, George Trishler, Cal Wyatt, William Dodds, Uriah Bellingham, Frank Smith, James Thompson, Peter Nellis and L. J. Selzer. The committee is instructed to confer with other labor bodies to secure co-operation.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Oct. 2.—Five persons were killed and three injured in a headend collision between freight trains in a tunnel near Cornwallis, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad today.

Fred Pearce, engineer of one train, William Miller, a brakeman, and a tramp were killed. Two bodies can be seen. Twenty cars were wrecked and the tunnel is filled with debris.

UTHOFF GIVEN MONEY BY BOTH SIDES IN DEAL

COUNCILMEN PAID MONTHLY STIPEND

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—In the Robert M. Snyder bribery trial today, ex-Councilman Fred G. Uthoff told of receiving packages of money from Snyder to support various franchise bills, and of later accepting money from Edward Butler, the millionaire Democratic boss of the city, which he claimed came from John Scullin, ex-street railway magnate, for introducing and pressing opposition bills.

Uthoff is the star witness so far in the bribery cases. He said Snyder offered him $50,000 for his vote and sent the money to his house, but he returned it. He also said Snyder paid him $2,500 on two different occasions in New York and later offered him $100,000 if he would support a gas franchise bill after making it a rider on the Central traction franchise. Uthoff declared he was offered $90,000 cash in hand, but declined it.

He said that Ed. Butler offered to pay him $5,000 a month and give the other councilmen similar amounts to defeat the Central traction bill.

Witness testified that Butler paid the money to him and that he distributed it among Councilmen Gast, Brinkmeyer, Gaus, Kratz and Thuner.

"In March, 1898, Mr. Scullin gave me a bill to introduce called the United Traction bill," Uthoff testified. "It was designed to head off the Central Traction bill.

"I met Mr. Scullin and he paid me $25,000 to push his bill and defeat the other one."

"What did you do with the money?"

After some further testimony, in the course of which witness said Snyder had told him he paid Councilman Charles E. Carroll $15,000, Judge Priest, for the defense, took the witness in hand and began the cross-examination, but developed little of an important nature.

PENNSYLVANIA HAS CHANGED ITS PLANS

New Connecting Line Will Bridge Allegheny at Coleman, Instead of Brilliant.

The Pennsylvania railroad has changed the plans for its connecting link between the West Penn, Allegheny Valley and Pittsburgh divisions. Instead of following the original line from East Liberty direct to Brilliant station and crossing the river at that point, the great connecting bridge will be built at Coleman station, a considerable distance above Brilliant.

The reason for the change is that there is not enough room at Brilliant for the switching yards and the project has met with decided opposition from prominent property holders at Aspinwall. It is just as easy to bridge the river at Coleman as at Brilliant, and more land for switching yards is available.

In pursuance of this change in the plans, the Pennsylvania sent a half dozen real estate men to Tennis street, East End, yesterday, and as a result of their combined efforts, six properties were purchased at a total cost of about $25,000. The campaign will be continued today, and it is believed that before evening every property on the street will belong to the railroad company.

Hebrews Eulogize Hay and Zola.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Unusual interest today attached to the celebration of the Hebrew New Year. The observances were more general than they have been for years, and conspicuous features were tributes to two men not of the Hebrew faith, John Hay and Emile Zola.

LAURA BIGGAR LIKED THE SOUND OF HIS MUG

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

FREEHOLD, N. J., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Sarah Hendrick and Joseph Hendrick, mother and brother of Dr. C. C. Hendrick, failed in their attempt to place bail for him today.

The party came here last night, with counsel, and applied to County Clerk McDermott to accept bail. They offered deeds of property showing a valuation of $9,000. The court decided not to accept the bail until an official search in Hudson county regarding the incumbrances against the property could be made. It is not believed that further attempts to secure the release of the doctor will be made.

A story is told here of the beginning of the acquaintance between Dr. Hendrick and Laura Biggar. Shortly after Henry M. Bennett's death Hendrick read the story of the actress' good fortune as provided by the will. He wrote her a letter setting forth the advantages of his sanitarium and inviting her to visit him. The letter brought a telephone message from Miss Biggar to the doctor. A conversation ensued, in which, so the story runs, she gave expression to something like the following:

"I like the sound of your mug. Come and see me."

The doctor went to the Farmingdale place of Bennett, where the actress was, and took her back to Bayonne with him, including her maid and one of the Bennett cows.

The counsel fees in the litigation over the Bennett estate are said to amount to nearly $100,000. In court today the various counsel interested renewed their application to have the fees allowed. Judge Helsley laid the matter over for further consideration.

Today E. W. Arrowsmith, representing the heirs-at-law who are resisting the claim of Laura Biggar, went to Asbury Park to arrange for the exhumation of the body of the baby.

JUDGE COHEN WAS HEARD IN DENIAL

At Leetsdale Last Night He Refuted Slander Uttered at Another Leetsdale Meeting.

At a largely attended political meeting held in Groetsinger's hall, Leetsdale, last evening, two prominent speakers who had not been announced were heard, briefly. They were Judge Josiah Cohen, candidate for associate judge of the Orphan's court, and Attorney John Marron, a leader among the local Democracy. The other speakers were Henry M. Long, Congressman W. H. Graham and T. J. Ford.

Judge Cohen said he had attended the meeting so that he might make answer to an unfounded charge made against him at a meeting held on Wednesday night of last week by Attorney George R. Wallace, of Leetsdale. Wallace asserted in a speech he made that evening that a large sum of money was used to secure Judge Cohen's appointment to the bench. This, the judge said, was made out of the whole cloth, as not one dollar was expended by himself or friends for that purpose.

The opening address was made by Mr. Long, who declared that George Shiras III, candidate for congress, had proved his incompetency as a representative of the people during his term in the state legislature. He said Shiras then introduced a bill for the government of cities of the second class which was a hundred fold worse than the ripper bill, and this was proved by the measure receiving only five votes when called up for final passage.

"Eternal City" Is Produced.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The dramatization of Hall Caine's "Eternal City" was produced at His Majesty's theater tonight before an immense audience, including many persons prominent in the artistic and theatrical world. The play met with an unexpectedly enthusiastic reception, due more to its superb mounting and the fine acting of the company than to the intrinsic merits of the piece itself.

PITTSBURGH MONEY DONATED TO ROME

Monsignor Kennedy Securing Funds for the Palazzo Tomba.

Rome will soon have a fitting monument to the generous spirit of the Roman Catholics of Western Pennsylvania. When the Palazzo tomba, a landmark in the Eternal City, shall have been added to the structures of the North American college in Rome, the funds donated by Pittsburghers will have a large share in the founding of the new building.

Mgr. Thomas C. Kennedy, rector of the North American college, who has been in Pittsburgh for two days, working in behalf of local contributions to the fund, left for the west last night, heartily satisfied at the outcome of his mission. Mgr. Kennedy spent the greater part of the day at the Episcopal residence of St. Paul's cathedral as the guest of Bishop Phelan.

The Palazzo tomba was erected more than a century ago and is one of the famous buildings of modern Rome. It adjoins the grounds of the North American college and the wonderful growth of the institution makes it necessary that it be acquired by the college to answer the urgent need of more room.

Mgr. Kennedy is a native of Philadelphia. He is a man of magnetic presence, is tall, and despite his advancing years stands as erect as a soldier. Under his rectorship the college has closely followed American ideas.

Mgr. Kennedy has many friends in Pittsburgh. For Americans visiting Rome he is frequently the host and through his introduction many travelers from this city in recent years have been enabled to secure an audience before the pope. Mgr. Kennedy will make a tour of the entire west before returning to Rome.

SCOTCHMAN WITH COAT OFF.

That is Andrew Carnegie's Characterization of American Workman.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Copyright Cable.)—At a recent dinner given by Col. Hunsiker at his house in Park lane, the guests included the American ambassador, Andrew Carnegie and Sir Thomas Lipton. The conversation turned on the great ability of American workmen.

"Don you know," suggested Mr. Carnegie, "I have an idea that the American workman is only a Scotchman with his coat off?"

"Bedad," said Sir Thomas, "an Irishman doesn't have to take his coat off."

POLES ARE PARALYZED BY RING PATRIOTS

Dr. A. J. Barchfeld and John P. Eberhardt last night tried to organize the Polish Republican league of Allegheny county. The organization was born in the machine auditorium, in Sixth avenue, after the doctor and Eberhardt had talked themselves hoarse in an effort to instill "pure Republicanism" into the minds of their hearers. Their speeches were repeated in Polish by interpreters, and that proved to be "the limit." The Polish were fairly well entertained, but when the interpreters started and the crowd learned just what it was the two organizers had been saying, the disintegration commenced and at last only 33 Polish delegates and the organizers were left. Then, taking the hint, Barchfeld and Eberhardt hurriedly departed.

"Come, John," said Barchfeld, "we'll let these fellows run the rest of this themselves."

Joseph Gyma, the Polish editor, who acted as chairman of the meeting, in repeating in his own language the arguments of the politicians, had a difficult task.

Eberhardt's speech was really a gem. He described Controller Larkin as a serpent possessed of the devil. It was a figure of speech, of course, but throughout his address, which lasted an hour and five minutes, there were frequent flights of rocky rhetoric carried upward with hoarse oratory. The handclapping was directed by Barchfeld, who sat in a front row center and signaled to the men in the pews as he would have led the choir of a country church.

When the Poles got down to business they carried out their work with dispatch and elected two delegates from each Polish resident district to form a central committee. There is no doubt that the Polish voters of Pittsburgh are enthusiastic Republicans, but they will not give their allegiance to machine politics masquerading under the guise of the party of Lincoln and McKinley.

Honor for Mrs. Cornwallis-West.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—At Balmoral Castle today King Edward conferred the order of the Royal Red Cross upon Mrs. George Cornwallis-West for her services on board the hospital ship Maine during the South African war. Mrs. Cornwallis-West was Miss Jennie Jerome of New York. She was formerly Lady Randolph Churchill.

your past is also secure. Brandywine and Valley Forge and Gettysburg are still upon the indestructible roll of fame, and old Independence hall still stands as an inspiration to your sons. He who is going around your realm, traducing you today, has reiterated in this campaign the plain and palpable truth that commonwealths and nations only grow great when blessed with wise and well-administered laws.

We would call his attention to the fact that in wealth, population and power, you have grown faster than any of your sister states that touch upon your borders, and then defy him to avoid the irresistable conclusion that you are moving forward upon your march of greatness under wise laws, wisely administered and under good, healthy political conditions. Great in agriculture, transportation, banking, religion, education and morals, you are pre-eminently great in the industrial world.

Your generosity to charity, which is the greatest human attribute, is unexampled in the history of man, while your splendidly generous contribution to the cause of education is without a parallel and stands as a monument, challenging the admiration of the civilized world.

No, Pennsylvania, you need not fear nor blush when over 1,000,000 of your sons shall have spoken on the 4th day of next month and recorded their disgust for the base calumnies uttered against you, and have buried beneath an avalanche of freemen's votes those purveyors of public calumny and those hissing tongues of villification and abuse that would seek to elevate their party and themselves by reviling you and bringing reproach upon your great and glorious name.

There was continued applause for the speaker's trenchant remarks, and after Gen. Latta had made a telling speech and S. R. Dresser, candidate for congress, had spoken, the meeting closed with a reception in which the candidates shook hands until their arms ached.

The gubernatorial party will be at Milton tomorrow afternoon and at Shamokin in the evening, and will close the week at Millersburg Saturday afternoon and at Harrisburg Saturday night.

SIBLEY AND SMITH SPEAK AT OIL CITY

Former Postmaster General Pays a Glowing Tribute to Judge Pennypacker.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

OIL CITY, PA., Oct. 2.—The first public meeting by Republicans was held at the Oil exchange tonight, with the Hon. Joseph C. Sibley, candidate for re-election to congress, and ex-Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith of Philadelphia, as the speakers.

The attendance was large and the enthusiasm unbounded. Mr. Sibley opened with a graceful reference to the excellent work Mr. Smith had done while a public officer, and after a brief reference to national issues, confined his remarks to pleas for the election of the entire state Republican ticket.

Mr. Smith paid a glowing tribute to the sterling worth of Judge Pennypacker. He then led his audience to think of the national issues, his theme being the wonderful prosperity that had come to the country under Republican rule since Cleveland was president. No speaker has ever received a greater ovation from an audience here, his telling hits and presentation of Democratic figures being repeatedly interrupted by applause and cheering.

GOVERNMENT SUES SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Attorney General Knox Seeks to Recover on Land Grant to Old Atlantic and Pacific.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Oct. 2.—Suit has been filed in the United States circuit court by Attorney General Knox, District Attorney Valentine and Special Assistant United States Attorney J. H. Call on the part of the government against the Southern Pacific Railway Company.

It is an action to recover the excess over the purchase price received by the railroad corporation from the sale of lands within the 40-mile limit of the old Atlantic & Pacific grant, from the San Francisco connections to the Colorado River, under the act of July 27, 1866, and involves thousands of acres.

A subpoena is asked requiring D. O. Mills, Homer S. King and the Central Trust Company of New York as trustees to appear in court to answer to the complaint.

ASPHALT REORGANIZATION

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The plan for the reorganization of the National Asphalt Company and the Asphalt Company of America, which are in the hands of receivers, was declared operative today. Committees representing the majority interests in both corporations scheduled the assets thus far received. The reports showed that holders of 58 per cent of the Asphalt 5s, of which $30,000,000 were issued by the Asphalt Company of America, 76 per cent of the bonds issued by the National Asphalt Company, 88 per cent of the preferred stock of the National Asphalt Company and 83 per cent of the common stock of the same corporation, had agreed to the majority plan, and it was at once formally adopted.

It was decided to extend the time for depositing securities until October 20.

The new holding corporation will be controlled by a voting trust consisting of Rudolph Ellis, William P. Harrity, Henry Tatnall, Alvin W. Krech and George R. Trumbull. The last two represent the New York interest; Harrity the National company, Ellis the American company and Tatnall the receivers.

The $31,000,000 capital stock will be divided into $14,000,000 preferred stock, 5 per cent cumulative after two years, and $17,000,000 common stock.

His visit is part of a trip through the east conferring with the various locals. He attended last night a large meeting of Pittsburgh local No. 3 at 510 Wylie avenue.

In regard to the trouble between the structural workers and the boilermakers, over the line of division between their trades, he said: "We do not propose to allow the boilermakers to do erecting work of any kind. That is part of the work of structural men and those doing it should belong to the structural union."

FLINN DESIRES EMERY ON TICKET

Question of Substituting Him for Nolan Now Up to Guffey.

NOMINEE IS SUBMISSIVE

By WALTER J. CHRISTY,
Staff Correspondent.

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 2.—Senator William Flinn would like to have Lewis Emery, Jr., on the "ballot reform" ticket as candidate for secretary of internal affairs. This information was given out by Mr. Emery tonight. He also announced that the question of withdrawing James Nolan, the Democratic nominee, had been referred to Col. James M. Guffey for decision. Nolan says he is willing to obey orders.

Negotiations are on between the Union party and the Democrats for the withdrawal of James Nolan and the substitution of Lewis Emery, Jr. According to the former senator the question has been referred to Col. James M. Guffey, and so far there has been no decision.

"I do not want the place because of any personal benefit," said Senator Emery. "It is to help along the cause for which I have been working since 1878. There are thousands of Republicans in the state who would vote for Pattison if there is a Republican on the ticket in the place of Mr. Nolan, who was nominated. Pattison had to get 100,000 votes 12 years ago and he will have to secure them this time.

Flinn Eager for the Change.

"From all over the state I hear that the substitution is desired. Senator William Flinn of Pittsburgh is desirous that the nominees of the Union party be placed in the Democratic column. He would like to see my name on the Ballot Reform party ticket. I have not seen him, but his chief man, Senator John S. Weller, told friends of mine at Harrisburg this week that Flinn wanted me on the ticket.

"There are a large number of Republicans in Allegheny county who will go on the stump if I am substituted for Nolan. They will not do this on my account, but because they believe that it will help the cause for which we are fighting.

"I am told that at the meeting in Pittsburgh Saturday night there were few Republicans in the audience and none on the platform. Had a Republican been on the ticket with Pattison there would have been many prominent Republican business men at the gathering.

"The only reason given by the Democrats for not withdrawing Nolan, is that he, being the regular nominee of the Erie convention, the Catholic vote would be withdrawn from Pattison. To my mind this excuse is as thin as a wafer.

"No matter what the outcome of the negotiations may be, I will support Pattison. I had no intention of speaking at the meeting tonight, but I will stump the county for Pattison and the Union ticket."

This statement was read by Mr. Emery before it was wired to The Gazette, and he said it was correct and satisfactory.

Emery Induced to Say a Word.

The Pattison party came to Bradford tonight after whirling through Forest and Warren counties. The campaigners had expected that Lewis Emery would attend the meeting and make a speech. There was a big audience in the Lyceum to greet Pattison and Guthrie, but Emery was not there.

Pattison, Guthrie, Nolan, Fitzsimmons and Stranahan stuck to their old texts.

Just before the close of the meeting John S. Rilling was sent to the office of Senator Emery to urge him to come to address the meeting, if only to say that on a future occasion he would make a speech. On this basis he consented. He was given a vociferous reception.

Emery said he had been for Pattison in 1882 and 1890, and added that he is still a Republican. He said he would make a speech before the election in which he would favor the men named on the Democratic and Union party tickets.

After the meeting Nolan said the question of his withdrawal had been left to a committee. He said he is willing to do whatever that body thinks best.

Republicans of McKean county have an excellent organization and are hard at work. They expect to give Pennypacker a majority and elect their members of the legislature.

Before school time this morning Pattison and Guthrie were preaching to a good-sized audience at Tionesta, Forest county. Forest does not have a great many inhabitants but most of them are Republicans. Jacob Wentz says that they will give Pennypacker 400.

Home of Sibley's Competitor.

It is in Forest that J. B. Watson, aged 75, opponent of Congressman Joseph C. Sibley, lives. The old gentleman did not appear at the meeting. The party was met at the station by a committee of 15, headed by County Chairman William Hood. Oliver Proper, the insurgent leader, was on hand and accompanied the spellbinders over into Warren county. Proper is one of William Flinn's field lieutenants, but he is not operating a branch of the Grimes "Muddy Water" party.

T. F. Ritchey was chairman of the meeting. The Democrats know that they cannot carry Forest for Pattison, but they are hopeful of electing a member of the legislature with the help of Proper and his crowd. Joseph W. Landers is their candidate. The Republican nominee is Col. C. W. Amsler. He will win the contest. Representative A. M. Doutt, who was an insurgent in the last legislature, believes the entire Republican ticket will be elected.

Sibley will carry the county. Although Watson is a resident of Forest, his style of politics during the war has not been forgotten even by a good many of his Democratic brethren.

The senatorial fight will be interesting in Forest. E. M. Wilson of Clarion is the Republican nominee, and he intends to defeat Congressman J. K. P. Hall of Elk, who is endeavoring to break into the senate on the Democratic ticket with his barrel. Hall is expecting to carry Forest, but will be fooled.

The Tidioute Meeting.

From Forest the campaigners went into Warren, a county Pattison carried 12 years ago; but this fall it will give at least 1,200 against him. The first stop was at Tidioute, the home of Senator H. H. Cumings. The town will give one of the best majorities for Pennypacker in the county.

Just as the campaigners arrived the senator was leaving for Oil City, where, with Charles Emory Smith and Congressman Joseph C. Sibley, he helped to open the Venango Republican campaign tonight. He says Warren will give Pennypacker a good majority.

The meeting at Tidioute was attended by about 200 people and was presided over by W. R. Dawson. There was a run into Youngsville before dinner. The meeting in Warren this afternoon was the smallest matinee played to in a county seat during the trip of the barnstormers. When Perry D. Clark called the gathering to order there were not 300 men, women and children in the opera house.

The candidates did not change their speeches, but spent the afternoon in scolding. One of the most prominent Democrats in the county, who was at the hotel to shake hands with Pattison, told the writer that Pennypacker would carry the county.

Republicans Once More.

Ex-Sheriff David W. Howard was the chairman of the independents in the Sibley-Emery fight, and he is said to be working for Pennypacker. Another strong Emery man was D. J. Ball. Today he is one of Pennypacker's most enthusiastic supporters. There are many others who are in the same class. J. W. Dunkle, who led the Republicans there two years ago and last fall, says Pennypacker's majority will run from 1,200 to 1,500. There are some independents in the county, but they are not organized.

Democrats of Warren are making a special effort to elect C. E. Bordwell to the legislature. His Republican opponent is Representative L. C. Baker, who is seeking another term. Baker will be cut some, but there will not be enough chopping to keep him out of the next house. He had a good record in the last legislature.

Senator H. H. Cumings probably will lead the ticket in the county. His opponent is Robert C. McCalmont, a Democrat of Venango county. Mr. McCalmont is not strong enough to poll many votes outside of his party, and will lose some Democrats. Even should McCalmont be able to carry Venango, Cumings would have enough majority in his home county to make his election certain.

Congressman Sibley has an easy thing in his district this fall, but he will make a campaign. He will tour his district in an automobile especially built to travel over the bad roads of Northwestern Pennsylvania. His opponent will remain in the woods of Forest.

ORDINANCES WILL BE READY MONDAY

Pennsylvania Plans to Go Before Councils—Duquesne Way Line Close to River.

Robert Pitcairn, resident assistant to the president of the Pennsylvania road, admitted yesterday that the Pennsylvania ordinances, granting the company rights in the East End and on the South Side, are to be presented to councils Monday. James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, has charge of the ordinances for the transfer of the Liberty avenue tracks to the Allegheny wharf.

According to those who saw the railroad surveyors at work, the new Pennsylvania line is to run along the wharf about 40 feet down from Duquesne way. The United States engineer has relocated the wharf lines, going over the old surveys and marking the wharf limits. The railroad surveys were made about a month ago and the United States engineer's surveys followed soon after.

The plan to remove the grade crossing on the Panhandle at Second avenue, exclusively announced in The Gazette yesterday, has been received with much favor. That particular crossing has long been considered a general nuisance and constant danger. It will be necessary to make a considerable change in the street. The engineer's plans for the new bridge will elevate it only a few feet and there is a 15-foot dip in the line from the south end of the bridge to the Union station yards. The tunnel prevents much change in the level of the tracks.

The nearness of the completion of the warehouse plan has awakened interest in the old project of the Baltimore & Ohio to build an elevated line down the Monongahela wharf. That plan has been lost sight of in the desire of the road to secure its more pressing needs, a better line along Second avenue, to be secured by a transfer of its right of way for part of Second avenue, and larger and better freight and passenger stations. Before giving much consideration to any other else the Baltimore & Ohio wishes to secure these facilities. Ordinances for both have been presented to councils.

Pushing Union Stogies.

W. H. Riley of Wheeling, national president of the Stogie Makers' league, is spending the week in Pittsburgh, urging, at meetings of labor organizations, the smoking of union stogies only. He says that the league will make another fight for admittance to the American Federation of Labor, at the November convention in New Orleans. He says also, that the jealousy of the cigar makers' union, which sees how stogies are encroaching on cigars in common use, is the reason for refusal of affiliation with the Federation at previous conventions.

Allegheny Nearly Broke.

Funds to operate the departments of public safety and public works in Allegheny are low and it is said that after November the treasury will be exhausted. This condition is attributed to many increases in salaries during the year. Controller Brown said yesterday that the departments will have little money after Christmas.

BRADLEY WANTED SPECIAL SESSION

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DISCUSSED STRIKE.

Resolution Went to Committee. Reply to German Consul—Ohio River Improvements.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon John Bradley presented a resolution asking that the chamber draw up and present to Gov. William A. Stone a petition urging him to call a special meeting of the state legislature, that it may take immediate steps toward settling the strike in the anthracite region. The paper contained a resume of the conditions that have existed in the hard coal region during the past five months, and called attention to the fact that business in all parts of the country was suffering, as a result of the difficulties. The paper was finally referred to the committee on mineral products.

George H. Anderson, secretary of the chamber, said as the president of the United States had summoned a conference of coal operators and President Mitchell, any action on the part of the chamber would perhaps be premature.

State Should Settle It.

Mr. Bradley's reply was that the strike existed in the state of Pennsylvania, and that it was up to the state and its legislators to demonstrate to the country that the strike could be settled without any interference on the part of national officials.

A letter from Earnest L. Harris, the United States consul at Elbenstock, Germany, in which he signifies his intention of visiting Pittsburgh this winter, accompanied by a German steel manufacturer, asked that the chamber of commerce grant permission to Mr. Harris and his companion to make a tour of all the big mills around Pittsburgh.

Secretary Anderson was instructed to reply to Mr. Harris, saying that the chamber of commerce of Pittsburgh would take pleasure in introducing Mr. Harris and his friend to the large steel manufacturers in this vicinity.

The report of the committee on Ohio river improvements supplemented by reports from Maj. W. H. Bixby, late in charge of the Ohio river, and of Capt. Craighill of the upper Ohio, was read.

Approve the Plans.

In this report both Maj. Bixby and Capt. Craighill gave unqualified indorsement to the improvements already under way and recommended that an appropriation of $3,223,400, in addition to the other money provided, be asked for.

A request from the national board of trade that the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce contribute to the fund of $4,000 that it is proposed to raise to defray the expenses of a commission to be sent through the western states to try to influence other cities to become members of the national board, was shelved.

The final report of the Sheraden relief committee was submitted and the plan to give to the city hospitals any unexpended balance of the sum collected for the relief of the Sheraden sufferers was passed.

The resolutions on the death of George A. Kelly that were passed at a special meeting of the organization last week were finally adopted. In the absence of President A. M. Logan, the chair was filled by Robert Pitcairn.

NEW OUTLET FOR COKE.

Senator Elkins Is Promoting a Railroad From Connellsville to Wheeling.

WHEELING, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Senator Stephen B. Elkins is the prime mover in the formation of a half million capitalized trust company here whose object, it is said, is to finance the building of a railroad from Wheeling to the Connellsville coke region. Local manufacturers pay 25 cents a ton freight more for coke than does the Pittsburg district, although a cross-country haul by the proposed road would be shorter to Wheeling.

Such a road has been agitated for years and the most recent attempt to build it was fathered by Attorney Mark Potter and other New York men.

Senator Elkins has no holdings in the western end of this state, and the Wheeling-Connellsville road interests him particularly as a line in the Wabash system, with which his West Virginia Central road is allied.

The men charged with participating in the trouble are Charles W. Carpenter of New York, Alfred G. Hammill of Chicago and Frederick E. Kay of Pittsburgh.

ing its progress. These offers were spurned with contempt by the coal companies' presidents. The conference certainly can do no harm, and it may, and I sincerely hope it will, result in an adjustment of this controversy."

John W. Hayes, general secretary-treasurer Knights of Labor, said: "The action of the president is wise. It will meet with hearty approval by all labor organizations. It is the only method, in my opinion, by which the coal mine operators can be brought to a sense of justice. It is a recognition of the union by the highest authority in the land, and nothing but good can come from it."

During the day Secretary Root, Attorney General Knox and Secretary Shaw were in conference with the president. Secretary Wilson was at the White House for a short time, but the three first-named remained with the president for nearly an hour. It is understood that the president discussed the subject of the conference tomorrow.

Knox and Wright to Attend.

It has been decided that Attorney General Knox shall attend the conference. He will be the only member of the cabinet who will be present. Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, who recently investigated the strike situation, also will attend on the invitation of the president.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Senator Quay reached Republican state headquarters this afternoon. He said:

"I went over to Washington on a flying trip for several purposes, on my way from Beaver. First, to have the man in charge of my house prepare for the reception of my family; second, to see if I had credit enough to borrow some money; and, third, to inquire of the president whether he had any influence with the war department.

"There are seven moveable dams in the Ohio river in Pennsylvania, five of which are in Beaver county and two in Allegheny county. It is the desire of the people of the upper Ohio, within the limits of Pennsylvania, that these dams be erected into a separate engineering district and that Capt. William Martin, the present engineer at Pittsburgh, be placed in charge. Thus far I have failed to make progress in this enterprise, but I intend to pursue it further. My visit had no relation to the coal strike."

A Few Words About Strike.

"What was said by the president and yourself concerning the strike?"

"The coal strike was alluded to. I told the president that I had some experience in the strike field and that he would find some very stubborn gentlemen when he got them together."

"What are your impressions as to the political outlook, after your visit to Western Pennsylvania?"

"I am satisfied that Allegheny county will give the Republican state ticket a large majority. The indications are equally favorable in all parts of the state, and the general situation is entirely satisfactory."

WILKESBARRE, PA., Oct. 2.—President Mitchell, accompanied by the miners' district presidents, Nichols, Duffy and Fahey, left here this evening for Washington via Philadelphia. Mr. Mitchell declined to express any opinion. All he would say was that he hoped for the best.

Operators Go to Washington.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The coal presidents left for Washington at 4:11 o'clock on a special train. The party consisted of E. B. Thomas of the Erie, President Fowler of the Ontario & Western, David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the Delaware & Hudson, who went as the representative of President Olyphant; President Truesdale of the Lackawanna, and John Markle, the independent operator.

President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad, who received a special invitation from President Roosevelt to attend tomorrow's coal conference, was a visitor at J. P. Morgan's office today.

"I haven't yet decided to accept the president's invitation," said Mr. Cassatt, "but I expect to make up my mind later in the day."

Mr. Morgan and his representatives talked with some of the leading operators today. It is understood that certain memoranda have been prepared and will be submitted to the president at tomorrow's conference.

Mayor Low today sent another telegram to Mayor Maybury of Detroit regarding the proposed conference there on October 9. The mayor decided to take no action at present, awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.—The special train with the presidents of the anthracite coal railroads arrived in Washington shortly after 9 o'clock. They did not leave their cars and their train was switched to a siding in the yards of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for the night.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers and Nicholls, Duffy and Fahey arrived here at 1 o'clock this morning.

Operators' Alleged Offer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Post will say tomorrow that the coal presidents at tomorrow's conference will decline to accept any plan of settlement which proposes to treat with Mitchell; but that the coal presidents will propose that the men return to work with the understanding that their grievances as individuals shall be submitted to a board of arbitration and that the coal presidents will agree to abide by the decision of this board, the members of which shall be appointed by the president."

AWAIT COAL CONFERENCE.

Detroit Meeting Will Be Called Off if Strike Is Settled in Washington.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—The special committee in charge of the proposed national conference on the coal supply, to be held here October 9, met with Mayor Maybury today and decided to send the following telegram to President Roosevelt: "Convention called here for October 9 to consider coal supply. Responses from all over country indicate that convention will be large and representative in character. We all hope your good offices in conference tomorrow may settle difficulties and render all other efforts unnecessary. If we could have earliest advices of result of your conference it would control our future action."

Ryan On Tobacco Agreement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Authorized statements regarding the agreement between the American and British tobacco companies was made today by Thomas F. Ryan, who returned on Tuesday from London. Mr. Ryan said: "The agreement was mutual and entirely satisfactory to both sides. The agreement has an international character, which has not belonged, I think, to any previous trade agreement."

La Fleur
is coming. A pleasing study for women.

New Silks and New Velvets and Their Relatives.

Most women, in looking over materials, can see in their mind's eye the made-up gowns or waists. Women possessing that faculty will know at a glance, when they have these silks and velvets before them, that they are underprice—hence a considerable of a saving.

New assortment of Plaid Silks in Taffetas, Louisines and Irish Poplins, 58c, 75c, $1, $1.25, $1.50 a yard.

A yard wide rich and luminous Black Peau de Soie, the right material for the ultra fashionable long coats and wraps, $1.50 quality, here at $1.25 a yard.

The guaranteed black Taffeta which was advertised at 65c a yard, has only 500 yards remaining. If interested, kindly see our silk people today.

Paon Velvet in Pekin stripes—the ground of the velvet with contrasting colorings in stripes, giving it a chameleon effect, special at 85c a yard, although worth $1.

Persian and Stripe effects in fancy Pannes and Velutinas, at less than half price—68c a yard. The grade is one that usually sells for $1.50. No need to discuss why we choose to sell for 68c a yard.

The generally accepted idea is that silk stockings cost a lot of money. Some do, and no two ways about it. But here is the opportunity for women to buy something fine in the way of a silk stocking, and only have to pay a dollar for that fineness.

To be sure, they are the same grades of stockings that sell all the time in every-day retailing for $2 and up to $3.

But our stocking buyer took a manufacturer's sample line, together with all his small lines, and the concession was such that they can be sold for the even dollar.

Luxurious Wraps of Velour and Silk.

In women's wraps velour, among fabrics, holds the same proud position that sealskin maintains among furs.

The Velour Wraps in our superb collection represent the utmost of beauty in design and workmanship. Distinctive styles, lavish use of rich furs, such as sable, ermine, chinchilla, Persian lamb—beautiful and elaborate designs in silk, satin and braid applique—all combine to produce veritable triumphs of coat designing.

The same holds true of silk coats.

Many of the wraps show the very fashionable box back; and among the shorter coats there are some bewitching blouses.

In some of the garments a sort of kimona effect, which Paris has taken a fancy to, is noticeable.

Short Blouse Jacket of black velour with capelet effect; wide sleeves at wrist gathered into deep turn-back; belt, cuffs and collar piped with black satin; revers faced with white Irish lace; lined throughout with pearl gray satin. $48.00.

50-inch Black Velour Wrap, for carriage or afternoon wear; box pleat down back and on each side of front; wide bell shaped sleeves; two small shoulder collars, with trimmings of fancy braid; entirely lined with yellow surah. $65.00.

These are but two examples of a gathering that will fascinate every woman who cares for wraps that are of true elegance and in good keeping.

Velour Blouses, $25 to $100.

Velour and Silk Wraps, $25 to $125.

And the department on the second floor is ready for your preference.

The prices range below the usual, by a long ways—$5 to $30. Blue, gray and black lynx, sable and Isabella fox, minks, opossum, beaver, Persian lamb and other furs.

More New Waists.

It is pleasant for the ear to catch such phrases as "I never saw such a large line of waists as you people have."

Why that is our bounden duty—to give you variety.

The new light weight wool waist in tamise cloth, with front and back of stitched tucks, and bands of white taffeta silk; collar and cuff trimmed with silk. Only white and black. Price $4.50.

Sleeveless, at $2.50 to $5.

With sleeves, $5 to $12.

Misses' and Children's Shoes of the Right Sort.

All our shoes for young people are made over a natural foot last. That is the only sensible kind, especially for growing feet. A broad toe, a broad tread, no crowding of the feet in any way.

All weights, all leathers, and the prices range from the even $1 up to $3.

For boys there is a special cut called the blucher, a decidedly popular style. It is made of box calf; has heavy double sole of the quality that will withstand all kinds of romping. $3.

An extra heavy box calf shoe, straight lace, seems to be a favorite with many boys. It is a splendidly strong shoe and good looking. $3.

For a neat dress shoe for boys there are patent ideal kid shoes with soles of medium weight. This is an extra boy shoe, and the price is $3.50.

UNION CLAUSE IS NOT LEGAL

WILL EMPLOY UNION MEN

Does Not Care to Be Bound by Contract—Ex-Mayor Hewitt Jeered and Cheered While Speaking.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Oct. 2.—There was a large attendance at the public hearing of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel franchise today. Among those present were President William H. Baldwin of the Long Island railroad, and John P. Green, first vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

A protest against the granting of the franchise was read by Adolph Bloch, a lawyer, representing the owner of 26 houses on the south side of Thirty-first street between Eighth and Ninth avenues.

S. B. Donnelly of the Central Federated Union, said that labor's demands, as far as the franchise was concerned, were not exorbitant. They merely asked, he said, for a minimum rate of pay for the workers employed, the recognition of the eight-hour law, and the employment of citizens.

Abram S. Hewitt read resolutions passed by the chamber of commerce at its meeting today favoring the tunnel. They were, in effect, that the building of the tunnel would mean the expenditure by the railroad company of $50,000,000, that the demands of organized labor could not be legally complied with and that insistence would mean the prevention of the improvement.

Jeers and Cheers.

Here came the greatest corporation in the United States, Mr. Hewitt said, and offered to build the tunnel for the city. He thought it preposterous that the company should be required to pay for the privilege of building the tunnel, inasmuch as within 10 years it would become a necessity. He could characterize money taken that way as blood money. The city ought to reject the offer of the corporation and give back the millions to be paid to it for the use of the land underground which the city itself could never use.

At this point Mr. Hewitt was jeered, and the hostile demonstration provoked persons in the room to shout, "No; he's right!"

Mr. Hewitt finished his remarks by stating that the labor question might prevent the greatest boom the city had ever had offered to it. The question would soon resolve itself into having the price of labor regulated by law. Today Australia had been brought to the verge of bankruptcy by the regulation of the price of labor by law. If the demands of labor were granted, he would say, in all sincerity, the work would not go on.

No Objections to Unions.

President Baldwin of the Long Island Railroad Company said the insertion of the clauses asked for by organized labor would mean the indefinite postponement of the work of the tunnel construction.

"The Pennsylvania railroad has no objection to organized labor, nor has it ever expressed any such sentiments," said Mr. Baldwin. He said they expected to employ nothing but union labor and there was no reason why difficulties could not be submitted to arbitration, but that it was impracticable, in fact, illegal to put the clauses asked for in the franchises.

Comptroller Grout suggested that it might be legal to insert in the franchise that, in the event of a strike, no extension be granted the railroad company unless an offer to arbitrate came from the company.

President Green of the Pennsylvania Company held that it was not a proper clause.

Further consideration was postponed until next Tuesday at 2:15 o'clock.

5,000 LOVE LETTERS.

They Are Found in Matrimonial Bureau Raided by Police—Owner Escaped by Rope.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Throwing 5,000 love letters under a sofa, and hustling his sick wife and child into a closet, Isaac Warn, alleged proprietor of a matrimonial agency, slid down a rope from his third-story window just in time to escape the police, who were raiding his place of business.

Such was the discouraging experience of a man who promised a beautiful wife and $50,000 to every bachelor who sent him $5.

Other reputed matrimonial agencies that were raided today by the police were the White Business Bureau and Corresponding club and the Directory Company. No one was found at either of these places, but a number of letters and photographs, the accumulation from many large cities, were seized in both places.

MONEY STILL FLOWS IN.

Fifty Thousand Chain Letters Received by McKinley Memorial Association.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 2.—Col. Myron T. Herrick, treasurer of the National McKinley Memorial association, is receiving hundreds of small contributions daily.

Some time ago unknown persons started a 10-cent endless chain scheme. Later a 5-cent and then a 2-cent chain letter were started. Up to date fully 50,000 of these letters have been received by Judge Day, president of the association, at Canton, and forwarded to the treasurer's office in this city. Many are from European countries.

THE GREAT
CREATORE.
What This Great Musician Says of the HAMILTON PIANOS.

The following entirely unsolicited letter from this noted musician, who has taken music lovers and indeed, the entire city, by storm, by reason of his wonderful genius as a great conductor and musician, has this to say of this very beautiful piano, which is becoming better known every day because of its intrinsic merit, and the fact that Mr. Hamilton has supplied in this instrument all those qualities, both of construction and tonal beauties, which one-third of a century's experience in the piano business has taught him would fill all the wants of the most exacting musical critic, and especially for the home, hundreds of which have gone into homes of our best citizens, and always to the delight and satisfaction of the owner of this beautiful piano.

Director Creatore says:

S. Hamilton Piano Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen—It was good fortune that brought a HAMILTON piano to my room when I ordered one for my sojourn in Pittsburgh. It has afforded me great pleasure and satisfaction, and I wish to congratulate you on the excellence of the same. The tone throughout is grand, and the action so easy that it is doubly a pleasure to play upon it often.

Yours, very truly,
GIUSEPPE CREATORE.

Cosy Homes Are Being Built in Sheraden to Accommodate Clamorous Wage Earners.

This cut gives an idea as to how seven of the brick veneered houses being erected by John B., William and Henry Fitzgibbon, at the corner of Union avenue and Second street, Sheraden, will look when finished. The houses occupy a lot 100x100 feet and are set back 30 feet from the street, giving room for a good lawn and terrace, which are now being graded. Each house contains five rooms and a bath, and has a finished basement. The dwellings were designed by Architect A. E. Linkenheimer, and cost $1,800 each.

MANY ROBBERIES BEING REPORTED

BURGLARS AND FOOTPADS PLY THEIR TRADES.

Flats Entered and Ransacked in Both Cities—Brutal Work of Highway Robbers.

Burglars are plying their trade with great activity in Pittsburgh and Allegheny. They have not confined their work to the hours of darkness, but in broad daylight have committed the boldest robberies.

Yesterday morning the flat of Benjamin Heller at No. 74 Federal street, Pittsburgh, was entered and valuables amounting to $75 were taken. The family was attending services at the Washington Street synagogue. Detectives Waggoner and Kelly made an investigation and are of the opinion that the work was committed by professional thieves.

William H. Hogan of No. 2140 Rose street, employed in the Frick building, was held up on Wednesday night by three men in Center avenue not far from No. 2 police station and robbed of $10. The robbers beat him in a frightful manner.

Mike Yockobic of No. 253 Vine street, McKeesport, was held up by a colored man on Tuesday night in Ross street and robbed of $40. The robber cut Yockobic on the shoulder and left arm.

Burglars entered the Barrows flats, in Resaca street, Allegheny, on Sunday night and carried away silverware, cash and other valuables to the extent of $500. The flat of C. H. Young of the Fort Pitt National bank, Pittsburgh, suffered the most. The family was away for the summer and on Sunday night Mr. Young returned to get some clothing. When he entered the place he found the rooms had been ransacked.

Detectives Eagan, Cole, Elmore and McGovern arrested Ben Bell and Frank Moore, colored, yesterday morning at No. 537 Soho street. The men were recently released from the Moundsville (W. Va.) penitentiary, where they served three years for burglary and highway robbery. They are suspected of having committed the robberies in this city.

Clarence Wylie, colored, of No. 2 Thirty-first street, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Cole and Eagan on complaint of Ben Russell, also colored, of Lebanon, Pa. Russell claims that while he was asleep Wylie and his roommate robbed him of $86.

ZOLA'S WILL OPENED.

It Is Understood That Everything Was Left to His Widow—She Swooned on Seeing Remains.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The will of Emile Zola was found, as indicated by Mme. Zola, in his bedroom, the seals of which were broken in order to obtain the document. The room was immediately sealed up again. The will was not opened until late this evening, and its contents have not been made public. It is understood, however, that Zola left everything to his wife. He left no literary testament, and the will contains no directions as to the funeral.

Mme. Zola was allowed to see the body of her husband today. A large crowd assembled in front of the house, saluted her respectfully as the widow alighted from a carriage, assisted by two doctors. She was attired in deep mourning and was evidently very weak. When her husband's features were uncovered Mme. Zola's anguish was heartrending. She finally swooned.

GREAT LETTER WRITER.

Accused of Using His Gift to Win Half a Million by Fraud.

RUTLAND, Vt., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—The arrest of C. W. Norton of South Wallingford yesterday by a Boston postoffice inspector on the charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes has brought to light what is alleged to be one of the biggest swindles known in New England in many years.

The offenses charged against Norton cover several years and involve more than $500,000. Norton was an adept letter writer. He is accused of getting extensive consignments from wholesale houses on the pretext that he was an owner of a large department store.

CAUGHT THE CROWD.

So Many Responded That Stranger Wondered What Had Happened.

Down around the corner of Liberty street and Sixth avenue yesterday it looked pretty much as if a cyclone had struck town, and after gathering all the men above ground had landed them in a mass in front of the Liberty Clothing Company's store. Some strangers who happened along on their way from the Union station, stopped to inquire if there was a run on a bank.

"Not on your life," replied a broad-shouldered young fellow, who was elbowing his way into the push. "Here's where we save money instead of losing it."

It was all owing to the Liberty Clothing Company's gigantic sale, which started yesterday morning. This was no ordinary sale. In fact, nothing anywhere like it ever happened in Pittsburgh before. And it's not likely to happen again in a hurry. The Liberty Clothing Company bought the entire season's stock of Warner Bros. & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., for just one-third of its value. The stock was worth $300,000 and the Liberty Clothing Company bought it for an even $100,000.00. Then they turned around and put this enormous stock on sale at one-half to one-third the regular prices. Perhaps that didn't create a sensation! The facts regarding the entire deal and the forthcoming sale had been pretty well aired in the newspapers. Every man who knows anything about good clothes, knows that Warner Bros. & Co. make the best men's clothing produced in America. And everybody knows that they make only high-grade, merchant tailored clothing. It is a fact that the progressive merchant tailors copy the Warner Bros.' styles.

No wonder the swell dressers got a move on when they learned that they could get a Warner Bros. $10 merchant tailored suit for $5.98; a Warner Bros.' $20 suit for $9.98, a swell Prince Henry overcoat for $9.98 or an endless choice of all the latest styles of overcoats at prices ranging from $3.58 to $9.98. Just the same way with the suits. Unlimited selection and prices to suit any pocketbook with the certainty that whatever you buy is worth two or three times the price placed on it for this sale. The sale is still in progress and will continue until the immense stock is cleared out. But those who get in on it earliest get the best choice.

WAGNER BY CREATORE AT THE EXPO TONIGHT

Only two days more and Creatore closes his engagement at the Pittsburgh exposition. Great crowds thronged the exposition music hall last night and the enthusiasm almost beggared description. Creatore's rendering of Chopin's famous funeral march was of so noble and grandiose a cast as to hold his listeners breathless and spellbound.

Creatore has arranged for tonight two more of those Wagner programs in the presentation of which he has won a high name in the field of musical interpretation. By general request the "Tannhaeuser" overture will again be given tonight in all the overwhelming grandeur that on Wednesday evening last caused the audiences to shout itself hoarse, and throw hats and handkerchiefs into the air long before the final crashing chords were heard.

The exposition management dwells with especial emphasis on the two remaining Creatore matinees, as its earnest desire is to accommodate the largest number possible of eager patrons. Creatore's program for this afternoon follows:

RIVAL BETRAYS ELOPERS.

Very Youthful Youngstown Couple Intercepted at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Frank Lazara, just about of age, and Annie Corinca, only 14, but as womanly in appearance as if she were 18, both of Youngstown, eloped and came here to be married. The parents of Annie were opposed, believing her too young. The couple arrived here Tuesday morning.

Just as they alighted at the depot two city detectives took them into custody. A less favored admirer of Annie learned of the hurried departure of the elopers and notified the girl's parents, who promptly telegraphed to the Chicago police. Annie and Frank were detained at police headquarters until word was received from Youngstown today to send the couple home in the custody of an officer. They were taken this evening. Annie was in tears, but her lover vowed he would yet thwart the opposition of the girl's parents.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Three Missionary Societies Hold Interesting Sessions—Convention at Braddock Adjourned Last Evening.

The Western Pennsylvania Christian Missionary association yesterday at its morning session in the First Christian church, Braddock, took up the question of church unification, as suggested some time ago by the Evangelical alliance of the state. The convention passed a resolution unanimously indorsing the project of union. The resolution recommended that a representative to the next convention of the Evangelical alliance be appointed and suggested the Rev. Robert Graham Frank of the First Christian church of Philadelphia.

The convention decided by resolution to present the claims of the ministerial relief department to all the churches of the association and ask that a special offering be taken for this purpose in December. It was also decided to place greater emphasis on the thank offering in November for the Western Pennsylvania Christian Missionary society, as it is badly in need of funds. A resolution was carried unanimously recommending steps to place a general evangelist in the Western Pennsylvania district at a stipulated salary.

At Morning Session.

The morning session opened with a Bible study in St. John conducted by the Rev. R. J. Bamber, pastor of the Turtle Creek church. The business of the day was then taken and Johnstown, Pa., was selected for the next meeting, beginning the second Tuesday of next May. Reed of Vanderbilt, Pa., spoke of "The Relation of the Bible School to the Home."

A Christian Endeavor session was held at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. R. J. Bamber of Turtle Creek, district superintendent, in making his annual report, stated that 420 new members had been added. The Rev. E. Lee Perry of Indiana, Pa., spoke on "What is the Urgent Need of Christian Endeavor," and the Rev. W. L. Fisher spoke on "The Transition in the Christian Endeavor Movement."

The Christian Endeavor choirs of the western part of the state, formed a choir of almost 75 voices last evening and furnished the music for the closing session of the convention. The Rev. Hugh Cork of Aspinwall, county superintendent of Christian Endeavor work, and the Rev. John A. Jayne delivered addresses.

Methodist Gathering.

The third day's sessions of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, at the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Wilkinsburg, was held yesterday. The attendance was larger than on any previous day. The morning exercises opened with devotional services conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. P. Turner, after which Mrs. Leak, wife of the pastor of the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church, sang a solo. The report of the Pittsburgh conference was read by Mrs. William Van Kirk, followed by reports upon "Bands in the Pittsburgh Conference," by Mrs. Joseph R. Brown, and "Standard Bearers in the Pittsburgh Conference," by Mrs. A. E. Siverter of Wilkinsburg.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. D. Foss; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. L. Keen; associate corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. P. Darlington; recording secretary, Mrs. E. M. L. Wakelin; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas H. The election of delegates and the appointment of conference and district officers was deferred until this morning previous to final adjournment. Reading, Pa., was chosen for the next annual meeting.

The semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Monongahela presbytery was held yesterday in the Mt. Washington United Presbyterian church, Prospect street. Mrs. M. M. Patterson conducted devotional exercises. The report of Mrs. M. E. Roff, overseer of the Orphans' home, the Home for the Aged and the United Presbyterian Memorial hospital, was read. Mrs. D. S. Littell, representing the Bethesda home, reported it in a flourishing condition.

Italian Work Prospering.

Miss Carrie M. Reed of the committee on Italian work, reported that 16 men and one woman had been taken into the church through Miss J. B. Fortunato, the local missionary. The report of Miss E. D. Brown, the treasurer, showed the total amount raised for the year ending April 1, 1902, was $12,957 65. This amount was given proportionately to foreign missions, for support of their schools in Leurs, Egypt; the home missions; Warm Spring mission, in Oregon; Freedman's mission; ministerial relief; parsonage fund; orphans' home; Memorial hospital, and the home for the aged.

At the afternoon session devotional exercises were led by Miss Margaret J. Mitchell and Miss Nannie J. Spencer of Wilmington, a returned missionary, gave an interesting talk on her travels in Egypt. The presentation of missionaries then took place, the following being in attendance: Miss Myra M. Boyd, of the Shady Side church; Miss Lillian A. McConnell of the Turtle Creek church; Miss Alice B. WANT REPRESENTATION.

Report Made to Labor Council on Conduct of Penal Institutions and the Recommendation.

The report of the committee of the Iron City Central Labor council, appointed to investigate the charge that convicts are engaged in machine work at the Western penitentiary, was made last night at the meeting of the council. The report details a talk the committee had with Senator Charles A. Muehlbronner, the author of the law which is said to have been violated.

Senator Muehlbronner reiterates the old charge that machines are being operated by convicts. The report further states that the committee can prove that persons serving sentence at the county workhouse are being employed at the Harmarville and Kensington brickyards, and in constructing houses near the workhouse. It recommends that a representative of labor be placed on the boards of all penal institutions. The members of the committee were Cal Hyatt, William J. Kelly and James B. Culley.

South Monaca.

No prophetic eye is needed to see that in the near future the Beaver valley is bound to become one unbroken chain of splendid industrial towns. Mammoth industries are fast being attracted to it by reason of the unrivalled manufacturing sites afforded in this direction. Expansion is the need of the hour and the investment tide is turning towards the Beaver valley, marking its course with prosperity and progress unfolded at every point. South Monaca, the point of the opening sale of the Colonia Land Company's plan of lots tomorrow, will be the Mecca for thousands. A splendid town site, where more than $50,000 have already spent on improvements, will be thrown open to investors and homeseekers at this sale. The inducements held out are especially attractive to investors of moderate means. The new plan is located right in the midst of a populous and rapidly growing district, with important manufacturing industries on the ground to make certain its permanence. Houses by the hundreds are in immediate demand. Men from the Colonial Steel mills, Phoenix Glass works, Spang, Chalfant & Co., the Sanitary Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh Tool Steel Wire Company, etc., must live near their work, and in consequence these men are the first to appreciate what a great deal this new development means. Buyers of lots at South Monaca will be put to no burden for street improvements, for although splendidly situated lots will be sold on easy terms as low as $200, this price includes paving, curbing, sewering and rapidly growing concrete sidewalks on every street. This one item alone gives South Monaca a place at the head of all real estate investments now open to the public. Street cars connecting Beaver, Rochester, New Brighton and Beaver Falls run to the property and give splendid traction facilities to the entire neighboring district. The P. & L. E. R. R. will start at once the erection at South Monaca of a fine new depot, the best railway in this line. In addition to easy grade streets now reaching the residence sites, the Colonia Land Company propose to build at once a passenger incline to be operated for the convenience of residents at a nominal fare. Black & Baird, 419 Fourth avenue, who represent the Colonia Land Company, report a large demand for tickets for the free excursion to the opening sale, which leaves from the P. & L. E. R. R. depot tomorrow morning (Saturday) at 9:30. To give all a chance to go, representatives will furnish free tickets on the trains to those unable to get them today. Similar free excursions will be run from all points on the P. & L. E. E. railroad, trains starting from Fayette City, Sharon and New Castle. Tickets for these excursions will not be needed.

COL. M'KIBBEN NOW BRIGADIER

With Two Others He Receives Promotion, and All Will Retire.

AGE LIMIT IS REACHED

The Three Have Honorable Records in the Civil and Spanish Wars—Gen. Hood Is a Native of Ohio.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
605 Fifteenth St., N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.

President Roosevelt today recognized the long and honorable career of a Pittsburghers in the army by directing the promotion of Col. Chambers McKibben of the Twenty-fourth infantry to be a brigadier general as soon as Gen. Kimball retires, which is to be immediately. Col. Kimball was promoted to the rank today. Gen. McKibben is also to retire at once under the 40-years' service regulation to enable the promotion of Col. Charles C. Hood to be a brigadier general.

Col. McKibben is a native of Pennsylvania. He entered the army in September, 1862, as a private in the general service. In the same year he was appointed second lieutenant of the Fourteenth infantry, and by meritorious service rose to the grade of colonel, commanding the Twenty-fourth infantry, in August, 1901. He was a brigadier general of volunteers during the Spanish war and recently concluded service in the Philippines. He is now stationed at Fort Harrison, Mont.

Col. Hood, who is a native of Ohio, began his military service in August, 1861, as a private in the Thirty-first Ohio infantry, and was honorably mustered out as a captain in July, 1865. In the following year he was appointed a captain in the Forty-first regular infantry, and by gradual promotion became colonel of the Sixteenth infantry in May, 1899. He is at present in command of the post at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Gen. Hood, likewise, will retire as soon as he receives his commission in the higher grade, but who will succeed to the vacancy thus created, has not yet been determined.

These promotions are made possible by the retirement of Brig.-Gen. William H. Bisbee, who is now on his way home from the Philippines, and who was retired yesterday.

All the officers named are near the retiring age of 64 years, and but for the action of the president would have retired in their present rank of colonel. All of them saw service in the Civil war, as well as during the recent war with Spain.

Col. Kimball entered the army in 1861 as first lieutenant of the Ninth New York infantry. During and since the Spanish war he had charge of the depot of supplies at New York.

FAVORED FREE BATHS.

Allegheny Committee Recommends Ordinance Establishing Public Bath in the Eighth Ward.

The Allegheny committee on public baths last night reported favorably on the ordinance providing for the erection of a free bath house at the corner of Pike street and Church alley, Allegheny. The fund of $10,000 recently appropriated for the purpose of building three public baths in Allegheny was also increased by $7,000, set aside over a year ago for the purpose of rebuilding the Highland Avenue bridge over the Fort Wayne tracks and diverted from its original channel.

Recorder Murphy spoke in favor of the Pike street site. It is in the heart of one of the poorest parts of the city. No action on the proposition to locate a bath in the Sixth ward was taken. Director Albrecht was instructed to secure an architect and furnish estimates of the cost.

Dupuy Waives Examination.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 2.—Harry L. Dupuy of Allegheny, Pa., a Yale student, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of D. Thorpe Munro of this city by an automobile collision last June, waived examination in the police court today and was held in bonds of $1,000 for the superior court.

PORTER WON MEDAL BY SCORE OF 157

SEVEN STROKES LOWER THAN HORNE.

Five Allegheny Players Among Those Qualifying for the Championship.

J. E. Porter of the Allegheny Country club bagged the honors of the first day's play in the tournament for the amateur championship yesterday, returning the low score of 157 strokes for the 36 holes of the qualifying round. Porter's golf was easily the best of the tournament so far, being seven strokes lower than Horne, who was second, and eight strokes lower than Byers, the amateur champion. Porter's total is two strokes lower than the score for 36 holes which yesterday won Byers the open championship, though Byers' score of 75 strokes for 18 holes is still the record for the tournament.

Interest was added to Porter's performance yesterday from the fact that he did not take part in the open championship competition of Wednesday. But, although the course was far from perfection yesterday, it was several strokes faster than on Wednesday. Porter received the bronze medal offered for the lowest qualifying score.

The results of the day were a great victory for the Allegheny Country club golfers, five of whom are among the championship eight. Three Highland players are the other fortunates. W. C. Fownes, Jr., who met Byers in the final match last season, standing next to Byers in the list, while Ormiston, the champion of '99, tying with C. B. Fownes for last place. The golf of C. B. Fownes, Highland's boy wonder, was again a feature of the day.

Porter, who led the field, has figured prominently in every championship, but has never succeeded in winning the honor. Last season he was retired in the semi-final play by Byers, who also made the lowest qualifying score on the Schenley course, of 150 strokes.

The surprise of the play was the golf of E. E. Giles, a new member of the Westmoreland Country club, who in his first tournament in the local district, tied for sixth place on the qualifying list. He came from the New York district last spring, but has done little playing here. Today he meets the champion, Byers. The scores yesterday were as follows:

To the Men Who Know About Buffalo

Pittsburgh men who know very little about Buffalo, but know a lot about good clothes will be equally interested in our new method of making Suits and Overcoats to measure.

A PIECE of good news! If you ever lived in the "Pan-American City" and were a "swell" dresser (yet economical) while a Buffalonian, it is safe to surmise that the Desbacker-Block Co. made your clothes.

Likely as not you have some clothing need right now.

If so you will be delighted to learn that we are about to introduce the Desbacker-Block Custom Tailoring System of making clothes to measure as a new feature of the clothing department of the "People's Store." And to give the new venture an auspicious start, a Desbacker-Block representative (an expert cutter and fitter) will be at our store on Friday and Saturday (today and tomorrow) with more than three hundred large samples of the fall and winter suitings, overcoatings and fancy vestings, the latest fashion plates, and a set of the new embossed fashion medallions. You will find him ready to give you the Buffalo grip, spread out before you a splendid showing of new woolens, talk styles with you, and take your measure if something he has strikes your fancy.

The prices for the Desbacker-Block Custom Made Suits are $12, $15, $18, $25, $30 and $35.

The Desbacker-Block Overcoat Prices range about the same as the suit prices. The Desbacker-Block Trousers cost from $3.50 to $10.00.

From now on a complete line of the Desbacker-Block Co.'s samples, fashion-plates, etc., will form a regular feature of our Men's Clothing Department—the best possible substitute for a merchant tailoring department of one's own—and dollars better to the customers who let us take their measure, because we are able to guarantee unqualified satisfaction without taking any of the incidental risks or incurring the inevitable expenses and losses incidental to a merchant tailoring workroom on the premises.

ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY Watches Free!

To keep a procession of men and boys moving up and down the staircases and elevators leading to our Fourth Floor in quest of Ready-made Clothing the last two days of this week, we present to purchasers of Men's and Youth's Suits and Overcoats at $7.50 or more, absolutely free, a Stem-Winding and Stem-Setting Eclipse Guaranteed Watch.

We also give with every Boy's Suit or Overcoat at $3.50 or over a Yankee Guaranteed Watch.

Neither of these Watches are toys, but full nickeled perfect timekeepers in the most popular sizes.

Robertson Dreams Senator Quay Is to Indorse Machine's County Ticket.

BIG MEETING SHORTLY

State Chairman to Preside Over Republican Mass Meeting at Carnegie Hall—Fusion Move in Third District.

A. C. Robertson, chairman of the machine's county committee, announced yesterday that Senator Quay had volunteered to preside at a mass meeting in Carnegie hall, which Robertson said would be held on or about October 20. An effort was made to cause it to appear that Senator Quay would preside at a meeting that would be devoted to the exploitation of the machine's county ticket, but as Congressman Dalzell will speak on national issues, and Attorney General Elkin on state issues at this meeting, it is evident that county issues, as they exist in Allegheny county, will have to occupy a back seat on that occasion.

Arrangements for the meeting were made at a conference on Tuesday between Senator Quay and Chairman Robertson. Senator Quay even said, according to Robertson, that he would be willing to appear on the platform with ex-Senator Flinn, the fosterfather of the Ballot Reform party, better known as "Grimes' Muddy Water" party.

Robertson Has a Dream.

Of course Senator Quay's "offer" was gladly accepted by Robertson, who has ever since been trying to delude himself into thinking that Senator Quay will make a campaign speech advocating the election of the machine's county ticket. Those who know Senator Quay will also know how far to trust the dream.

The machine and its organs are endeavoring to make much of the alleged refusal of a machine legislator to accept a $20,000 bribe to vote for the ripper legislation in the last legislature. Dr. A. J. Barchfeld, the machine's congressional candidate in the South Side district, stirred the matter up Wednesday night in a speech before the organization's Thirty-fifth ward association, when he charged that money had been offered to Representative Charles S. Heselbarth. Heselbarth lost no time in vouching for the truth of what Barchfeld said.

Heselbarth Slow to Move.

Heselbarth said the alleged bribers went to his house and offered him much more than the amount stated by Dr. Barchfeld. Dr. Barchfeld said in an interview, that the go-between was a former councilman living in the West End. People are wondering why Heselbarth's sense of insult was not so great at the time the alleged offer was made, that he did not make it public then, instead of waiting until campaign times.

The contest between the Democratic faction of the Third legislative district, this county, was decided yesterday by the Dauphin county court, and the John A. Martin faction won. John Whitney and Onslow K. Gardner, the Martin candidates, were declared to be the rightful nominees, and the Boyle candidates, S. L. Mawhinney and B. F. Anderson, were declared to be not the nominees. The court decided that the convention presided over by Boyle had not more than half the number of delegates Martin had in his convention—and he had 21—and that the Boyle delegates did not meet at the time or place designated by the chairman of the legislative convention.

The Citizens party is indifferent about the decision. It was originally decided that the Third district could have one Democrat on the Citizens ticket if it so desired, and it was up to the Boyle and Martin factions to agree upon that Democrat.

Fusion Ticket in Third District.

The factions split, and the Citizens accepted the candidates who seemed to be the legally chosen ones, but now that the courts have decided against the Boyle faction, it is probable that the fusion ticket will be made up of one Citizens candidate and one Democratic candidate.

The Allegheny county machine has entered a contest against both Democratic factions to remove the Boyle nominees from the Citizens ticket and also to knock out the Martin nominees, all four being opposed to the machine. If all four are knocked out, the Citizens organization may be in trouble, but it is the intention to nominate one Republican and one Democrat, acceptable to both Boyle and Martin, for the legislature.

CITIZENS' GATHERINGS.

Enthusiastic Assemblages All Over County at Which Cause of Reform Is Warmly Indorsed.

Followers of the Citizens party were busy last night attending assemblies held for the purpose of explaining the aims and objects of the party. Five mass meetings were held in addition to the big one at Kenwood Lawn. At Crookson's hall, Verona, several hundred voters gathered to hear the issues discussed by W. S. Woods, R. T. McElroy, Samuel G. Bailey and J. Robert Wright. The Welsh anthracite miners' quartet furnished the music.

An enthusiastic meeting was held at Carnot postoffice, where addresses were made by J. W. Brown, S. G. Porter, George H. Stengel and Joseph H. Vitchestain.

There was a large assemblage at the Franklin school, in the Eighth ward. Speeches were made by L. S. Levin, J. M. F. Foster, P. J. Donahoue, H. A. Clay and James Evans.

Meetings were held at Coultersville, addressed by T. C. Jones, J. B. Hershey and A. B. Stevenson, and at Glassport, addressed by E. M. Trich, J. P. Dunn and W. A. Carney. Both meetings were marked by much enthusiasm.

Six mass meetings under the auspices of the Citizens party will be held tonight; At McKees Rocks, Fraternal hall, James W. Brown, W. A. Carney, Joseph H. Vitchestain, H. H. Negley, J. H. Burtt and Andrew Fulton will speak; at Aspinwall, in McKenzie hall, George Shiras III., W. S. Woods, Robert Malone, U. G. Vogan and Frank R. Meetings will also be held tonight in the Thirty-sixth ward auditorium and at the Twenty-eighth ward headquarters, No. 1480 Carson street.

Tomorrow night Citizens party meetings will be held at Bayone postoffice, at Glenwood, which will be an open-air meeting, and at Montooth borough.

A largely attended meeting of Citizens party workers of the Eighth ward, Allegheny, was held last night. Meetings will be held tonight in the Sixth and Fifteenth wards, Allegheny.

A Democratic mass meeting will be held tonight in the Ralston school hall, Fourteenth street and Penn avenue, at which W. H. S. Thompson, James M. Dunn, George H. Stengel and James E. O'Donnell will speak.

OBJECTS TO THE BUTTONS.

Union Man Says Those Distributed by the Machine Are Not Right.

A union man who is a warm adherent of the Citizens party has sent in a communication, in which he makes the following statements:

"I notice that the campaign buttons being distributed by the ring Republican campaign committee do not bear the Allied Printing Trades union label. They bear a label signifying that the lithographing is done by non-union labor, as the lithographers are independent of the other branches of the printing trades. If the button was manufactured by union labor it would bear the stamp of the Allied Printing Trades, such as that distributed by the Citizens campaign committee. If the firm that made the Republican campaign button was union its goods would bear the genuine stamp of the allied trades."

W. C. Jutte Once More Takes Up the Reins of Business.

W. C. Jutte returned to Pittsburgh yesterday from Europe, and is the perfect picture of health. After meeting the office force of the Jutte interests he immediately settled down to business, and it is said that he will once more take up the reins of active work, giving the coal business his personal attention.

Mr. Jutte was greatly benefited by the trip, he having gained 24 pounds while abroad. Mr. Jutte has always been regarded as one of the shrewdest men in the coal business. He knows it thoroughly, having led an active life about the rivers ever since early youth. He was given a warm welcome back by his friends.

News of the Rivers.

Capt. John Faddes is standing watch in the pilot house of the Morgantown packet Gertrude.

Capt. A. J. Spahr, formerly commander of the government snagboat Sutter, is now on the snagboat McPherson, at work on the Mississippi river.

A slight rise is looked for today in the Ohio river, as the upper Allegheny is rising. The Clarion is also sending out a foot of a swell. The pools in the Monongahela river are filling.

Capt. Aaron Hall, formerly master of the steamer Belle of Calhoun, is in the Rebecca hospital at St. Louis, undergoing treatment for his eyes. He has lost the sight of one eye, temporarily.

Capt. Samuel Charlton, a former riverman and manager of the Pittsburgh Arcade Hotel at Mt. Clemens, is in Pittsburgh. He is arranging for an excursion which leaves this city October 8.

The local steamboat inspectors went to inspect the towboat Twilight yesterday, but on account of a broken flange in the boat's steam drum, the inspection could not be made. She will be examined next week.

The St. Francis levee board (Arkansas) has a special fund of $125,000 to expend on the Walnut Bend levee improvement. The construction of a levee between Cat Island and Bledsoe is also being considered.

Great flocks of pigeons are inhabiting the Monongahela wharf, and Wharfmaster Jenkins Jones will not allow any one to molest them. The officers of the wharf and the police say that the pigeons are their pets.

Railroad surveyors at Memphis fear the river at that point will soon change its channel in such a manner as to remove the bed several miles from the levee. It threatens to cut through to Marion lake, which would change its course. At present not more than 150 feet of land separate the lake from the river.

Several years ago, steamboatmen say, Water street was a very quiet thoroughfare, but recently much hauling is done along the street. During the busy part of the day the street is lined with wagons hauling merchandise from one end of it to the other. If the Ohio river packets were running the street would be extremely crowded.

Capt. Isaac B. Williams yesterday received a number of photographs of the monitor towboat Sprague from Capt. James G. Beagell, master of the boat, for distribution among the latter's friends. The photographs are 11x2½ inches in size and the pictures are perfect in every respect. Among the recipients was the river editor of The Gazette. The boat is now nearing New Orleans.

Coal prices at Cincinnati and Louisville are still soaring skyward, the price at Cincinnati having again been advanced 50 cents a ton, and 25 cents a ton at Louisville. It was reported at the latter place that Chicago interests had purchased all the coal afloat there and would send it to Chicago, but this has been denied. Coal is selling retail at Cincinnati at $4 50 a ton in the city, and $4 75 in the hill districts. This represents an advance of 35 1-3 per cent. There is little coal afloat at either Cincinnati or Louisville.

Northern Securities Cases.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 2.—Judge Lochren today appointed Fred G. Ingersoll special examiner to take evidence in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities Company. Mr. Ingersoll had previously been appointed to take similar testimony in the case of the United States against the same defendants.

BALDWIN BLAMES ALL ON CAPTAIN

BOUQUETS FOR HIMSELF

Compares Time Spent in North and Results With Peary's Expedition—Says There Was No Cause for His Troubles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Oct. 2.—Evelyn B. Baldwin, the Arctic explorer, arrived today on the steamship Germanic. He at first refused to talk about the alleged controversies which had taken place between him and Capt. Johannsen of the America, but after hearing that it had been reported that the expedition had been short of food and supplies, Baldwin made the following statement:

"There is not a word of truth in the report of our not having sufficient supplies. It is easy to explain the trouble between myself and Capt. Johannsen. He wanted to be the whole thing. That's all. The trouble first started between the captain—or, to give him his proper title, sailing master—and the ice pilot, whose name is Arnsen. The ice pilot took up his place in the crows nest on the ship when we were in the ice fields and should have had, and eventually did have, complete charge of the directing of the ship.

Norway and Sweden at Odds.

"The sailing master objected to the ice pilot's holding absolute sway over the movements of the ship at any time, and that is how the row began. I, of course, took the side of the pilot, and saw that he was kept in command while we were in the ice.

"The expedition went away with 42 persons on board and we brought back the same number. The Fram drifted around in the ice for four years, while in one year we did almost as much and established an outpost. Why, we ought to be congratulated instead of, as you say in America, jumped on. I have learned one good lesson, though—never take a Swede and a Norwegian together along with you if you want to avoid trouble. The ice pilot was a Norwegian and the sailing master a Swede."

In response to Mr. Baldwin's request for information regarding any charges made against him he was shown a published interview with J. Knowles Hare, an artist on the expedition, who recently arrived here. The interview stated that there had been a disgraceful row between the captain of the America and Baldwin, and also that there had been an insufficient food supply.

Mr. Baldwin was also informed that F. S. Vineyard of Durango, Col., the first member of the expedition to arrive in America, had said that he would never go north again with Mr. Baldwin.

Always Must Be Kickers.

"I don't believe it," said the explorer. "Why, neither of these men has any cause to say anything against me. Every one was treated fairly and no one can say truthfully that he was not. If I go again next year, no matter who I take with me, whether they be Zulus, Hottentots or white men, there are sure to be some kickers in the crowd. The members of this expedition were mostly young men, and very few of them had ever undertaken such a trip before. This might explain some of the things said about me, but I am being done a great injustice.

"We had quite a pleasant time of it, taken altogether. Some of the men brought musical instruments along with them and they cheered us up a bit. Another feature was the cinematograph pictures that we took of various ice scenes. We also took hundreds of photographs. Our most exciting adventure was when we were coming back and were caught in the pack ice. This was really very serious, and the ship's propeller frame was broken and the rudder and screw bent.

"We were sending balloons and buoys adrift, containing messages, continually. Altogether we sent over 300 messages. Fifteen balloons were sent up, but they never reached their destinations. The meteorological observations taken and the dredging will be of great interest to science.

"I still believe that when the pole is reached it will be found to be surrounded by ice."

TO OPEN ON MONDAY.

Braddock Manual Training and Domestic Science Schools Ready.

The Braddock school directors will meet tonight to complete arrangements for the opening of the manual training and domestic science departments. Quarters have been arranged in the Second ward school building for the manual training and in the Third ward building for the domestic science.

It is proposed to open both next Monday, and many pupils have applied for admission. The teaching of the two branches this year is an experiment, and was started at the instigation of Thomas Morrison, general manager of the Edgar Thomson steel works, who contributed $5,000 to bear the expense for the term.

TRUE ARMOR.

Proper Food Defends Against Disease.

There is an assayer and chemist in Rosita, Col., Mr. C. Wulstein, who shows by actual every day demonstration that scientific food will make a man young again. He says:

"The question of proper food which will assimilate and protect the system from loss and waste of brain and muscle, becomes a serious one when man advances to my age of past 68. I am continually under a brain and muscle strain which for the last 35 years wore upon me seriously. My digestion became impaired and my whole system weak.

I saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery store, and bought a box. I tested it in my laboratory and found it correct according to your declaration of its substances in proportion with the phosphates intact.

I made it my principal food and gained in one year 18 pounds in weight, and had the pleasure of seeing my indigestion ... me entirely. After a year and a half of its use, I feel 20 years younger and am as strong and supple as I never was before during the last decade. I simply have found the true armor which is defending my body against disease and withering age.

I find it of advantage in field work and when prospecting in the mountains. When I go out upon geometric expeditions I take a quantity of Grape-Nuts along with me. This abolishes cumbersome baggage and food cooking utensils. A little sugar, a can of condensed milk, my Grape-Nuts, and I have my food in a closely condensed form, not weighing over four pounds to carry and I never get hungry. Concentrated re-agents are the most effective in all chemical operations, and Grape-Nuts are the re-agents that keep the body's laboratory (the stomach) in perfect working order. Your product is perfect."

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1902.

FOURTEEN PAGES.

Testimony in the St. Louis bribery case is of a highly sensational nature, an ex-councilman declaring under oath that he was paid an annual salary for voting in the interest of one street railway. Unquestionably St. Louis must have been at the mercy of boodlers under the regime of the "combine" with its sacrilegious oath. Doubtless other cities suffer from the same kind of corruption, but it is difficult to believe that any other can have reached the same degree of systematic plunder that is disclosed by the prosecution at St. Louis.

The intervention of President Roosevelt is evidently accepted with a sense of relief on both sides in the coal strike, although the operators feel some bitterness over the extent to which politics has become mixed up in the business of coal mining. It is recalled that the strike of 1900 was settled under political pressure, and it is argued that this encouraged the present strike by causing the miners' organization to reckon upon political support. Another settlement under political pressure will, therefore, it is held, make politics a permanent feature of the situation and make the mining industry the prey of calculations of political advantage.

Such fears are not groundless, but in the words of Cleveland, "it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us." The reciprocal organization of capital and labor are now so comprehensive that their relations have become a political question of the first magnitude. When a strike means a general prostration of an important industry and a stoppage of supplies essential to public welfare, the public is a party to the affair and the one chiefly interested. The right of public authority to intervene is indubitable and the sole question involved is one of expediency. The time has been when all industry was strictly regulated by the state, and students of economics are now generally agreed that there was a period when that regulation was salutary; the break down of the gild system and the opening of the whole field of production to individual enterprise was in the line of economic development and produced immense benefits, but competition and individual enterprise appear to have spent their force, as a means of industrial regulation. New conditions are being established and governmental methods must be adapted to these conditions. As a first step nothing seems more plain than that public authority will have to take jurisdiction of wage disputes.

The spirit of lawlessness, which every extensive strike develops, was undoubtedly aggravated in the anthracite region by the presence there of masses of ignorant foreigners, knowing nothing of our laws or institutions, and prone to turbulence when their passions are excited. President Mitchell might protest against riot and violence, and declare that he would rather see the strike lost than won by dishonorable means, but his words could hardly influence people who did not know what he was talking about. The importation of foreign labor on a large scale has subjected native miners to a labor competition that puts them at a disadvantage unless they are willing to descend to the low scale of living to which foreign labor is habituated. This process of degradation would have been effectually checked by the immigration bill excluding illiterates passed by congress in 1896. The illiterate laborers who pour into this country come chiefly from Southern Europe. While only 1.16 per cent of immigrants from Sweden, 2.96 per cent from Germany and 7 per cent from Ireland are illiterate, the figures bound up to 36.92 per cent from Austria-Hungary, 41.11 per cent from Russia and 54.59 per cent from Italy, of persons over 14 years of age. President Cleveland vetoed the bill on the ground that it violated our national policy to "welcome all who came to us from other lands," as if a policy adopted when immigration was a natural selection of the vigorous and progressive elements of the old world for the benefit of the new could not be changed when immigration had become a systematic deportation of pauperism and ignorance. Every society has a natural right to say who shall be admitted to its membership and President Cleveland was led into rank absurdity by adherence to sentimental formulas. It is rare that a statesman gets an opportunity to perpetrate such immense and lasting mischief as President Cleveland did then. The case is another illustration of the truth of Thackeray's remark that the greatest mischief in the world's affairs is done by good men from honest motives.

When last heard from our marines were running the Panama railroad and keeping open the Isthmian trade route. The gangs of revolutionists who are fighting over the possession of the government take United States intervention in good part, as they are left free to fight each other as much as they desire. The Colombian authorities asked permission to send some troops over the line, and it was granted with an escort of our marines to see that they didn't get into mischief. Yesterday's dispatches announced that a party of Americans were doing a turn for the revolutionists also. Americans are manning the guns of the insurgent gunboat Padilla, and the opinion of disinterested observers is that the Colombian government navy had better keep away. All this tragic farce of government at the isthmus must before long be terminated by our government. Our present intervention is based upon the obligations of a treaty with Colombia in 1846, which provides that the United States shall guarantee "the perfect neutrality of the isthmus with the view that the free transit from one to the other sea may not be interrupted or embarrassed." We have several times made use of that authority to land marines at the isthmus, and as under it the actual sovereignty is vested in our government, it is questionable whether our full duty is discharged short of anything but the permanent policing of the isthmus. Merely to open communications when they are interrupted by revolution is not guaranteeing "perfect neutrality." When we start upon the Panama canal, however, that will be the end of the matter. The isthmus is then ours to have and to hold, for there will be no other practical course.

THE WAR ON ROOSEVELT.

Harper's Weekly is steadily pressing its war upon President Roosevelt, and in one particular scores a point. It says the president's suggestion of a constitutional amendment to enlarge the powers of the government for the control of the trusts "may be dismissed as a chimera in the double sense of that word—a thing at once forceful and direful." It is true that the suggestion is not practical. Nothing less than an explosion of political force great enough to shake the entire fabric of government can move the machinery of constitutional amendment. The first 11 amendments to the constitution were virtually included in the pledges and agreements which secured the adoption of the constitution. The country was scared into the 12th amendment by the dangerous deadlock caused by the tie vote between Jefferson and Burr in the presidential election of 1800. All the other amendments were the results of the civil war. In the ordinary course of politics it would be impossible to get the concurrence of two-thirds of both houses of congress and three-fourths of the states upon any matter of importance. This shuts out the possibility of constitutional amendment, but it really is not at all necessary or desirable. The constitution, despite its seeming rigidity, is sufficiently plastic under strong and steady pressure of public opinion to conform to all national needs.

The matter of an amendment was, however, a suggestion by the way. The president's proposal for the present is simply that of publicity and supervision, like that which the government already practices as regards the banks and the railroads, and like that which the state governments practice with regard to state banks and insurance companies. The position of Harper's Weekly is that the trusts are a good thing and it makes out a strong showing in their favor. The large combinations, designated as trusts, although the term is a misnomer, are a legitimate business development, and in the main a sound product of economic forces, but it does not follow that they should be exempt from public control. Harper's Weekly protests against turning over "the control or regulation of intricate and delicate business interests to the lobbyists and politicians." But is any business interest so intricate and delicate as banking, and would any one favor freeing that business from the supervision and control of public authority?

The people have made up their minds that the industrial sovereignty, which has been concentrated in a few hands, shall be subordinated to the national sovereignty, and the only real choice remaining to those concerned is whether the Republican of the Democratic party shall do the work. President Roosevelt shows the true prescience of statesmanship in taking up the issue. If his action in so doing should defeat his renomination it would almost certainly ensure the defeat of the Republican party.

EXPEDITING THE MAILS.

During this week arrangements have been made for adding 26 mail carriers to the Pittsburgh force. This is gratifying evidence of growth. These carriers are essential to the prompt handling of Pittsburgh mail. But this is not all that is needed. Twenty-six additional carriers do not prevent all delay from the street corner mail box to the postoffice.

A couple of days ago George B. McAllister, formerly of this city, presented a plan to the postal authorities at Washington that is capable of greatly expediting the collection and delivery of mail. It is simply the equipment of trolley cars, so that carriers may send in their letters while making their collections, by which business men may start letters to the postoffice as soon as they are written.

Every Pittsburgher knows how collection and distribution of mails have been facilitated by trolley postal cars, and the carrying of mail pouches to and from sub-stations on the traction lines. Mr. McAllister's plan is simply to make every street car a mail carrier by attaching a device to the side into which letters may be dropped. The citizen may drop his letter in the first car that stops on the nearest corner. In the same manner carriers can drop letters whenever they cross the car line. Those letters will go to the postoffice while the carrier collects more. The whole idea is to keep letters moving toward their destination instead of having them lie for one or a dozen hours in letter boxes on the street corner. Under the present system letters are frequently a longer time going from the writer in this city to the postoffice than going from this city to the postoffice in New York.

Utilization of the trolley cars will do more to expedite the mails in general than expensive pneumatic tubes and fast trans-continental trains. A letter that lies 10 hours in a mail box and is thereby prevented from going on the first fast mail west, loses the advantage of the herculean efforts of the railroads to reach San Francisco in five days.

WHAT DRAWS THE ARTIST.

A pleasant word from persons who charm the dollars from the American pocketbook in the name of art is always gratifying. It is sweet to be appreciated. Therefore it is nice to be told that even if pioneers were moved by dreams of wealth to adventurously seek our undiscovered shores, it is not the prospect of rich reward that has made the tide of artists run more strongly in this direction. True, the numbers that have followed in the track of the pioneers and the number of dollars they have borne away have increased and multiplied, and some have been able to go home to purchase chateaus and town houses, and others to buy estates and yachts; but these things, we are assured, are not the real temptation to a season under the stars and stripes, straining the vocal cords at so much per strain, or fingering the piano or other stringed instrument at so much per finger. The thing that brings them, we are told by a Russian pianist, who has just set foot in New York, is appreciation higher and nobler than that manifested in receipts from the sale of seats, which manifests itself in "something that comes to the artist from the audience even when there is no applause." Of course, the artist's share of the receipts comes, applause or no applause, but this isn't what he means, though he doesn't further define it, except to say: "Sometimes the audience carries the artist; I have felt it often after only a few bars had been struck."

All this we are glad to hear. It makes us feel better satisfied with ourselves as audiences and as appreciators of art. We have, after reading it, an increased consciousness that we are not the outer barbarians we seemed to be in European eyes prior to Manila bay and Santiago. We accept the compliment, and red letter it, nevertheless acknowledging all the while a sub-consciousness that however strong may be the something that comes to the artist even when there is no applause, it would not be attractive enough to draw the self-same artist a second time were it not for the applause that finds eloquent expression in the box office.

NOW A CAMPAIGN OF BLUSTER.

There is noticeably less of argument in the Democratic campaign now and more of bluster. At the outset the Democratic candidates flung out charges against state administrations and state legislatures without stint. Every evil report—and evil report is continually on the tongue of envy—that had ever been circulated about Pennsylvania and its affairs of state was taken up by the orators to be exploited as testimony against Republican management. There was a careful neglect of specifications as to what a Democratic administration would do in the premises, but a general promise that it would make things better.

Since Judge Pennypacker took up these charges, exploded many of them, defended the good name of the commonwealth and made specific declaration of what he will do as governor to discourage corruption, the Democratic orators and press have been putting less stress upon idle rumors. The orators continue speaking and making vague charges and promises, of course, but the feature of the reports is a magnifying of the crowds in attendance and the enthusiasm displayed at given points. This braggadocio will fool the people no more than the earlier attempt to blacken the reputation of the commonwealth, or the indefinite promises to rescue it from imaginary perils.

As a matter of fact the state had Pattison in the governor's chair for two four-year terms, separated by a four-year interval. Looking candidly at the situation no man can see wherein the state was benefited. Progress has been made under Republican auspices. Pattison added nothing to the list of positive advantages. His administrations were negative in character and barren of results. With these facts the people are familiar and no amount of villification of Pennsylvania, or of promises of another negative administration is likely to induce them to give Mr. Pattison the third term he seeks. Judge Pennypacker's virile honesty and simple straightforwardness are far more suggestive of aggressive good government.

WHAT MR. BROWN HAS.

The Hon. Joseph Owen Brown, in expressions of zeal for Republican success, has erred in his diagnosis, or is to be credited with a slip of the tongue. "I have a disease; I have it in every bone and sinew; this disease is the Republican party; I am working for it body and soul; I have not lost any of my enthusiasm; I am for the whole ticket from top to bottom." So he is quoted in an interview published yesterday morning. It is plain that Mr. Brown spoke with enthusiasm. Often in the fervor of such a moment the tongue plays tricks. In calmer mood Mr. Brown will be open to an amendment. The Republican party is not a disease. It is an elixir. There is a difference between a disease and an elixir, as Mr. Brown knows. Knowing, he will not need to reflect long to be able to tell on a second attempt which is working in his inwards. If it is really and truly Republicanism it is elixir. Besides, a man would not work body and soul for a disease, unless in an effort to cure it. Therefore, it must be elixir that set the recorder going, and as the remarks were made soon after a private conference with Dr. Matthew Stanley Quay, we imagine "the old man" must have prescribed it for him. Disease may have been working in his bones and sinews before the interview, but it is said that a talk with Quay is good for the health, and that he gives prescriptions of unfailing virtue. He probably prescribed Republicanism in large doses for Mr. Brown, who in his exuberance after partaking, got his terms mixed. Mr. Brown can bet it is elixir if he has given a straight description of the symptoms.

A WHOLE CITY ON STRIKE.

Although we have had some pretty bad strikes in this country, and although the tendency to use them as a form of political agitation has been strongly marked in some cases, yet we have not yet had anything to equal the strike that collapsed in Florence, Italy, last month. It had a small beginning. Twenty-two men employed at an iron foundry were discharged on the ground that there was no work for them. The rest offered to work shorter time so as to make work for the 22, but the management refused and all hands struck.

A confederation of all the trades of Florence, known as the Chamber of Labor, ordered a general strike to show "the solidarity of labor." The organization was under Socialist control and all the trades had been previously prepared for such a demonstration by Socialist teachings, so that the strike did indeed become general. The bakers were the first to go on strike, and the city authorities had to import bread and open depots for its sale. Then all the printers struck and every newspaper had to suspend. The strike then spread to cabmen, omnibus drivers, street car hands, cooks and waiters, tailors, hat makers, carters, porters and other trades. Finally it extended to the public service, gas workers, lamplighters and street sweepers quitting work in a body. There was a partial strike among railway workingmen, but not extensive enough to stop the runnings of the trains. Hotels and shops were, however, closed, and the social disorganization became so great that in less than a week the strike collapsed of its own weight, the men flocking back to work from a common impulse.

The great sufferers by the strike were the masses of the people, the workers and their families, and the homely proverb about biting off one's nose to spite one's face appears to fit the case exactly. The Chamber of Labor has, however, issued an address thanking the workingmen of Florence "for the sublime example of solidarity and of wise virtue, which will prove a severe warning to those who menace the progress and well-being of their class."

Combination and incorporation of the local express or parcels deliveries is in line with the spirit of the age. They find they can work to advantage under one management. When there is no freight to carry in one direction there is likely to be a surplus going in another direction. By organization the carriers are enabled to give better service at a lower rate or a higher profit.

Senator Quay is no less active in the effort to settle the coal strike than President Roosevelt, and they make a strong combination.

Emile Zola dead goes right on stirring up commotion and creating sensational situations as was his habit while living.

The Hon. David B. Henderson has so far managed to stay retired.

The proposed peanut trust came to grief early.

DEVERY KEEPS HIS FIGHTING ATTIRE

Rich Invective for Hill and Others Who Barred Him Out of Convention.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

W. S. Devery is fighting mad. He expressed this afternoon some opinions of his treatment at Saratoga that were warm enough to suit any admirer of rich invective. He had just heard that it was the intention to bar him from the Eleventh and Thirteenth district congressional conventions tonight, and he talked about mandamuses and other things with a volubility that showed he had been studying the matter. He paid his respects to David B. Hill in his own characteristic way, calling him an "old chestnut," and declaring that he "can't look an honest man in the eye. His little ratty eyes wiggle like an electric cigar sign in Broadway." That kind of description of a political enemy is quite in the style of "Big Bill" and will be recognized instantly. There is no question that Devery will be an important factor in the fighting which will take place this fall within the ranks of Tammany. The whole organization is in a disrupted condition and Devery will not do anything to bring it together. He is not sorry that there is blood on the moon, because he dearly loves a scrap, and it matters little to him what happens if he can get his foot in firmly. Tammany knows that it must reckon with him in anything it does, and that merely trying to bar him out of conventions will not crush him, by a great deal. Devery was still a little fatigued this evening after his exciting experiences in Saratoga, but he was ready for the fray, notwithstanding. The trouble over the "Big Chief" in Tammany is only second in importance to the coal famine, in the eyes of most New Yorkers. There is a general hope that the Devery trouble will be adjusted as quickly as the coal strike, but most people doubt it. Devery himself says the fun is only just beginning.

Minneapolis Loses Popularity.

When the news reached this city this afternoon that the former superintendent of police in Minneapolis had been sentenced to the penitentiary for six and a half years for accepting a bribe, it sent a thrill through the police force here. "Gee!" exclaimed one well-known detective. "Who would want to live in Minneapolis?"

Revolution in the Throng.

Since one of the two big department stores in Herald square has opened for business, it is noticed that the character of the promenaders has entirely changed. It is a shopping crowd that passes along the broad sidewalk now, and the Tenderloin element has gone further uptown. One does not see groups of second-class actors, racing tipsters and the flotsam of a careless district, moving sluggishly up and down between Thirty-third and Thirty-fifth streets. The show windows attract women from all parts of the city, and there is a stream of them passing in and out of the stores. Herald square is taking on the characteristics of Twenty-third street, and very bright and attractive are those characteristics.

Betting Odds Favor Odell.

Odell is favorite in the betting on the governorship. The odds were two to one on him this afternoon. In addition to the bets made yesterday there were several made today. S. S. Schuyler is a gentleman who is willing to bet $400 to $1,000 on Coler, but the odds have not yet reached that figure. Still, two to one on Odell is indication enough of the general opinion that it will be a Republican victory in New York state next month.

Landlords Shut Down on Dead Beats.

Landlords in New York are insisting more on tenants signing leases when they take apartments. A lease for a year is usually demanded in all cases where the apartments are of the better class, the position of the landlords being that if the prospective tenant does not intend to remain for a year he is hardly worth while. It is an old trick for irresponsible people of easy conscience to take a flat whereof the first month's rent is free, stay a month and then get out to some other flat on the same terms. All it costs them is the moving expense. To prevent that a lease for a year must be signed now, and the free month, which is generally expected, is the last month of the year's leasehold. When something happens that makes the tenant desire to give up his apartment, he has the privilege of subletting, and in that way he is easily relieved of his obligation in most cases. There is a big demand for apartments ,and landlords are able to make provisions for their own protection that were out of the question a few years ago.

Huge Demand on Faith.

New York is promised the rapid transit tunnel in running order by Christmas of next year. If one were asked to judge by the condition of upper Broadway in and above Longacre square when the tunnel will be finished, his opinion hardly could be favorable. The whole thoroughfare is a hurly-burly of holes, rock, blasts and mud. There are wooden fences along the places where the sidewalks should be, and wild-eyed Italians waving flags on top of heaps of stone and rubbish generally. It is almost inconceivable that things can be straightened out there in a year's time. The contractors say they will do it, and perhaps they know what they are talking about. The average citizen can only look at it all and groan. Forty-second street, from Broadway to Sixth avenue, is still in the horribly torn-up state it has been for two years past. Perhaps the Irish foreman and Italian laborers know what they are doing, but it does not appear that they are doing anything except obstructing the thoroughfare. Subway operations certainly are still in exsitence even if experts can see the end of them before 1904.

Veterans' Thoughts in Washington.

There will be a large exodus of old soldiers from New York on Monday next. The encampment of the G. A. R. at Washington is attracting them, and as there has been a special railroad half-rate made for them, it will not be a very expensive trip. Ticket agents say there never was an encampment which caused a greater demand for tickets, and they expect all Washington trains to be loaded with veterans on Sunday and Monday.

Hewitt Unpopular With Labor.

It was shown today that Abram S. Hewitt, the venerable ex-mayor of New York, is not entirely popular with the labor element. When he arose to make a speech this afternoon at the public hearing before the board of rapid transit on the Pennsylvania tunnel franchise, he was jeered rudely by a number of labor delegates. There was no explanation of their hostility, nor was any asked, but the labor men were promptly squelched by others in the room, and Mr. Hewitt went on with his remarks. The incident was significant, however, as showing that the labor men were not willing to listen to anything that might be advanced by the other side from as plain-spoken a man as ex-Mayor Hewitt.

Wild Animals on Good Behavior.

Bostock's animal arena opened this evening at St. Nicholas garden. There was an immense attendance and the entertainment seemed to please them very much. Bonavita, the lion tamer, with his group of 29 lions, was one of the big things in the show, and Morell and her trained jaguars was another. There were many acts by wild animals and a number of features in the line entirely new to New York. The garden wherein John S. Duss held forth for so many weeks with his Economy band looks altogether different, now that it has been converted into a Roman arena, and one could hardly believe it to be the same building. Frank Bostock himself, who is said not to fear any animal alive, was a conspicuous object in the arena, watchful of everything. The first performance in a new place is always a ticklish occasion with wild beasts, and Bostock was ready to quell the first sign of an outbreak, but everything went along smoothly, and the animals behaved as well as a lot of good children in a day school.

Coal Operators Off for the Capital.

When the coal operators who will meet President Roosevelt tomorrow left the Pennsylvania railroad station for Washington this afternoon there was a large crowd to see them depart. Interest in the conference to take place is so great that it extends to those who will take part in it, and each member of the party was looked at closely as if the spectators tried to discern from the faces of the delegation what would be the outcome of the meeting at the White house. The operators were just an ordinary looking group of business men, however, who did not carry their thoughts and intentions on the surface.

Narrowly Escaped a Leopard's Claws.

H. C. Schwab, the former theatrical manager, who is connected with the Bostock show, had a narrow escape from a serious mauling by a leopard this morning. He was passing a cage containing one of the fiercest specimens in the collection, when the beast suddenly shot out a paw, with claws extended, just missing Mr. Schwab's arm. He said that if he had been two inches nearer the cage there would have been a very badly wounded ex-Pittsburgher in the arena.

Etruria's Victory Costs Her Dearly.

Pittsburghers who may have made up their minds to run over to Liverpool on the Cunard liner Etruria next Saturday will have to cross the Atlantic on another ship. The Etruria has a flaw in her shaft which will necessitate the putting in of a new shaft before she can sail again. She reached New York on Saturday last, after beating the Celtic and the St. Louis on the run from England. She passed them both in mid-ocean. In doing so she strained her machinery, and mechanics on this side must straighten it out. How bad the flaw is can be judged by this fact, for repairs to Cunarders are made in Liverpool as a rule.

Jewish Holiday Makes Dull Trade.

New York has worn a holiday aspect today. So many mercantile establishments, the heads of which are Hebrews, have been closed in honor of the Jewish New Year that some streets have been almost deserted, and looked as they do in summer on Saturday half-holidays. Throngs of men and women in their gala attire went to the synagogue, and when they came out, about 1 o'clock this afternoon, the cars were crowded with them. The Hebrew New Year is a day of rejoicing in all American cities, but the very large population of Hebrews in New York makes the day more noticeable here than in Pittsburgh and other large centers where they are in a decided minority.

Truant Boys Given a Scare.

It is not a safe thing for boys to play "hookey" to go to a theater in New York. Two youngsters of about 10 years of age were brought up in court today by agents of the Gerry society to tell why they went to the Star theater last night, while George Walker, who is ticket-taker at the gallery entrance, had to explain why he sold tickets to minors. Walker was held for trial in $100 bail, although he protested that he thought the boys were with grown persons, and the boys went home after being scared nearly out of their wits. Walker is a former Pittsburgher.

Big Opening for German Theater.

This was a good night for the opening of the Irving Place theater, which is devoted to the German drama. After attending religious services today in honor of the New Year, there were a great many Germans of the Jewish persuasion who desired a night of entertainment, and they crowded Herr Conreid's theater to the doors. He says it was one of the largest opening nights he has had for many years.

Chief Croker Proves His Efficiency.

Edward Croker, fire chief, who is under a charge of incompetency, gave his enemies a hard rap at a fire carly this morning by handling the affair in a masterly way. It was in East Houston street, and until the chief arrived it looked as if the whole block might be burned down. Then Chief Croker took hold of it, and by his skill and energy he held it down to a trifling $2,000 flare-up, with no damage to human life. Considering that it might have been easily a million-dollar disaster, the chief's adherents consider he disposed the accusations of incompetency in a more effective way than he could do it by a score of witnesses in court; and in the light of common sense most persons will agree with the aforesaid adherents.

Carrie Nation in a Restaurant.

Carrie Nation took a quick lunch in a Park row restaurant this afternoon and almost caused a riot. Her funny bonnet and generally outre makeup attracted the attention of idlers and a crowd took their stand in front of the door, watching the indomitable hatchet reformer disposing of doughnuts, ham sandwiches, milk, cocoanut pie and bananas with the same air of business that distinguishes all her doings. For once Mrs. Nation did not care to be looked at, and she begged the manager to get her out by a private exit. Happily this particular restaurant has a convenient doorway on a back street, and Carrie had got away and was in a car on her way up the Bowery before the assemblage outside knew that she had finished her pie.

Walnut Stumps in Demand.

From the New York Tribune.

Walnut stumps are assuming undreamed of value in Tennessee. An Indiana concern has had men traveling all over the country buying every old walnut stump that could be found. At first the prices were small, but they have now leaped out of sight. The stump of a tree that was felled several years ago brought more than the small and branches. The odd part of it is that the taller, knottier and more unsightly a stump is the more money it will bring. It is stated that the stumps are made into veneering material and used in the manufacture of high-grade furniture.

The editor of Little About Everything has discovered a genius of verse whom he styles "A gifted young literary doughnut manufacturer." Probably if there were more of 'em in the doughnut business, literature in America wouldn't look so lean.

PERSONALS.

Dr. A. F. Gasmire, the Wheeling man who looks so much like President Roosevelt, came up to Pittsburgh again last night and as usual had his pockets full of coal land options. He never has any trouble in disposing of these valuable papers to wealthy Pittsburghers, who seek good investments. J. N. Pew and Dr. Gasmire have done business together several times. Dr. Gasmire has added to his oil and gas interests in that part of West Virginia generally known as the Lower Southwest, a big block of Texas oil lands, about 20,000 acres, and down in the Lone Star state, as well as here in the north, he is known as the man who looks like Roosevelt. The doctor helps the thing along by wearing a turndown collar and in other particulars copying after the president's style of dress. The doctor has a hand grasp any president might envy—it is one that makes even strong men wince. And like the president, Dr. Gasmire is a mighty hunter. He has a collection of guns and tackle that represents a big pile of dollars.

A stirring scene was witnessed last night when Company G of the Third regiment of the Boys' Brigade marched up Liberty street to the Union station on its way to attend the national convention of the United Boys' Brigade in Lancaster. As the command marched by the Seventh Avenue hotel the word was passed that one of the local regiments had received orders and was on its way to the anthracite coal country. Commercial men and other guests of the house were quickly in front of the hotel, and as the boys passed loudly applauded the marching troops. The command was accompanied by Gen. H. P. Bope, Adjt. Gen. John A. Clark and Maj. Thomas H. Brown.

J. H. Farrell of Oil City, who is at Newell's, is an enthusiastic fisherman when not selling goods on the road. "Fishing on French creek this season," he said last night, "is the best in years. The bass are biting voraciously and many big strings have been brought to town. I expect to get home in time for some of the heavy frosts, when the bass, like the rabbit, are riper than at present."

R. S. Davis, Jr., formerly connected with the Cotton Belt railroad, has been made contracting freight agent of the Frisco system at Pittsburgh, to succeed William Milligan, promoted to traveling freight agent. Mr. Davis is a native of Pittsburgh and is well acquainted here, although of recent years his railroad work has been in the southwest.

During the past week the New York and Chicago Limited has been from five to 20 minutes late on its run into this city. Last night it pulled into the Union station 30 minutes late, the time being lost after leaving Altoona. Heavy freight trains encountered all along the run west of Philadelphia are said to have occasioned the delays.

J. W. Plimpton of Oil City and S. A. Thomas of Franklin, county commissioners of Venango county, are at Newell's hotel.

Junior Partner—Fact. Just retouch the old wood cut illustration we've been using on our letterheads. Make the horse car passing the door an automobile, take the hoopskirts and dinky parasol away from the lady at the door and put her in a shirtwaist and walking skirt, and there you are.

PULLED HIS LEG TO SOME PURPOSE

A PITTSBURGH gentleman who has spent much time in the mining regions of the Rocky mountains and has wide experience in exploring wild country with sturdy prospectors for gold, tells a unique story of an accident which happened to a settler in one of the narrow valleys that ramify the mineral bearing hills of Colorado.

"The last time I was out west," said he, "I fell in with a rare old character of the mountains known in all the surrounding mining camps as 'Gopher,' though I subsequently learned his name was Joseph Herbert. He was called 'Gopher' because he panned for gold at very shallow depths along the hillsides, where rich seams of gold quartz and sometimes pockets are found very near the surface. This class of prospectors is usually called 'pocket hunters.'

"One day 'Gopher' and I were plodding along a narrow ravine leading to a camp when we came across the shack of a miner who was developing a placer bed in a small way, besides cultivating a garden and raising live stock on a very limited scale. As we approached the cabin we saw the miner apparently wrestling with a yearling calf. He had a rope about its neck and was endeavoring to tie the animal to a post in the yard. We stopped to witness the performance and in almost an instant the miner and calf were on the ground. The calf immediately gained its freedom and scampered off, dragging the rope. The miner failed to rise and said that he thought he was badly hurt.

"We picked him up, carried him into his shack and put him to bed. 'Gopher' remained at the cabin while I walked nearly five miles for a doctor. The physician discovered one of the miner's legs was broken. With an improvised pulley, made for the most part of halter straps, we began the process of setting the bones. The poor fellow suffered excruciating pain and his terrible yells echoed and re-echoed far down the mountain ravine. The operation lasted for more than an hour. 'We must work until both legs are the exact length,' said the doctor; and we did.

"Old 'Gopher,' true to the customs of the frontier, remained with the invalid miner until another nurse came to relieve him. A few days after the accident I visited the cabin and noticed a high heel on one boot. I asked him why he wore one heel higher than the other. He replied with a smile, 'Why, one of my legs is shorter than the other.' I knew then the secret of his intense sufferings while we were setting his leg; but it was several months later that I learned the process of ossification had done much for him, for when he left his bed his legs were the same length."

Chicago at St. Louis.

In order to beat out that 102 record of victories it behooves those champions of ours to buckle right down to business and snail the next two games from the Reds. The pennant winners made a game try for the first one of the series yesterday afternoon, but could not make the riffle, and went down with colors flying by a score of 6 to 4.

The stumbling block yesterday was William Phillips, who pitched ball for a living in the summer time and in the winter whiles the hours away by blowing a cornet in the Allenport (Pa.) brass band. The way Bill worked yesterday made it look as if his berth for next season depended on that one game and he was out to make good. A glance at the tabulated score will show that the best the champs could do in nine innings was six hits. It takes better batting than that to win ball games these days. It might win from a cross-roads club, but not from a full fledged league team fighting for a position in the first division.

Lucky to Get Any Runs.

To tell the truth, the Pirates were mighty lucky to get four runs. Had the visitors played the game as it should be played there would have been a shutout for the locals. The pitching that Phillips put up deserved a result of that kind, but the pitcher can't play the whole game. Harry Steinfeldt was in a large measure responsible for three of the runs scored by Clarke's crew, and Mike Donlin gave them the other. Michael got even for his mistake by slamming out four hits, three singles and a three-bagger, stealing three bases and scoring two of the Reds' runs.

There was never a stage during the contest when Phillips was not master of the situation, having the local batters foded at all times. To add to his clever pitching he won his own game by whacking out a three-bagger in the eighth inning, which brought in the runs necessary for a victory. His clever work in the box was shown in the first inning, when, with three on bases and only one out, he struck out Burke and Sebring. Phillips really pitched a grand game, being both steady and effective at critical stages.

The Schoolmaster Was Trounced.

It was just the reverse of this with Sam Leever, who was on the rubber for the locals. The schoolmaster seemed to have lots of speed and his curves were working all right, but try as he might, he could not fool the Red batters. It was their day to hit, and hit they did. The schoolmaster was touched up for 15 hits, and only for fast fielding back of him the visitors' score would have been almost double the number scored. It looked as if Sammy was rattled by the noise made by the 2,500 newsies who were guests of the club and occupied the left field bleachers. The boys rooted hard enough for the champions, goodness knows, but their rooting could not bring base hits.

The Reds started scoring right off the reel. Mike Donlin, who was first up, laced the first ball to center for a single, stole second and scored on Beckley's single to middle. In the third, with two out, Bergen singled to right, took second on Sebring's fumble of the hit and scored on Phillips' single to middle. Donlin beat out an infield hit in the seventh, stole second, went to third on Beckley's fly-out to Beaumont and scored on Seymour's single. Steinfeldt started the eighth with a double to left and Morrissey followed with a single to center, scoring Steiny. Phillips' three-bagger to right scored Morrissey and Donlin's single to center scored Phillips, with the Reds' sixth run.

Got Runs on Errors.

The champions got three in the second, Leever leading off with a base on balls; Beaumont's hot grounder was fumbled by Steinfeldt and both scored on Clarke's three-bagger to left. Clarke scored on Donlin's wild throw. In the third Wagner got all the way to third on Steinfeldt's wild throw and scored on Burke's single to left. After the third the Pirates only got two hits off Phillips, one by Beaumont in the sixth and the other by Clarke in the ninth. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Joe Kelley, manager of the Reds, was not in the game, but there was not a player on the team who worked harder than did Joey. He shouted directions from the bench to his players, and when his team went to bat he was out on the coaching lines arguing with Umpire O'Day and shouting hot shots at Schoolmaster Sam. Kelley is a hard worker whether he is in the game or not.

A number of players from other teams watched yesterday's game from the grand stand. Among the party were Jimmy Williams, who is visiting his wife's folks on the North Side, Bobby Wallace, who took a run down from Millvale, and who is not saying much about next season, and last but not least, Broadway Alex Smith, who is going out to Chicago on a visit and stopped off to see the game.

There's no two ways about it, that Donlin boy is certainly a ball player. His one error yesterday was due to the fact that he has a bad throwing arm, but he made up for that mistake at bat and on the bases. He had four hits out of five times at bat, three singles and a three-bagger. He scored two runs and stole three bases, second twice and third once. That was a pretty fair afternoon's work.

In the seventh inning the spectators were treated to an exciting sprinting match which they highly enjoyed. Donlin had laid off with a neat three-bagger and tried for home on Crawford's bounder, but Jimmy Burke shot the ball to Harry Smith and Donlin started back for third. Near third Smith tossed the ball to Leach and Tommy was a yard to the bad, but he started after Donlin and the race for the plate was fast and exciting. About four feet from home Leach by superior sprinting reached his man and tagged him out.

Jimmy Burke once more demonstrated that he is one of the best utility men in the league. Conroy was out of the game, so was Bransfield, and Wagner went to first and Burke to short. During the afternoon Jimmy had seven chances to take care of and some of them were of the most difficult kind, but he never made a slip-up. He covered a lot of ground and showed that he can play any infield position equally well.

Manager Clarke was back in the game after an absence of two weeks, and he made his presence felt by slapping out three hits, two singles and a three-bagger. As a leader Clarke has no superior, and he can set a fast pace both in field and at bat. If some of the other batters had torn off hits after the Clarke style the league record in victories would have been reached yesterday.

Bill Phillips certainly had the pitching goods with him yesterday, and he delivered them all right. It was Phillips' first victory over the champions this season and he worked hard for his win. He not only pitched fine ball, but he batted like a Kelobe, having two singles and a three-bagger to his credit. In the ninth inning Bransfield was sent in to bat for Leever, and Phillips didn't do a thing but strike Kitty out. That's pitching some.

That crowd of newsies had more fun than could have been furnished by a box full of monkeys. They yelled like a lot of Indians when Manager Clarke made his three-bagger, and they cheered every champion who appeared at bat, but their particular favorite was Tommy Leach, who was cheered every time he handled the ball or bat. Their crowning joy, however, came in the seventh inning, when Leever struck Beckley out. How that crowd did roast big Jake was a caution.

Jake Beckley roused the ire of the spectators in the fifth inning when he blocked Harry Smith's effort to head off Donlin at second base. Donlin was on first and started to steal. Of course, it was Beckley's place to help the steal along, but the pitch was wide and as Jake could not reach the ball he deliberately threw his bat in front of the catcher. Smith protested to Umpire O'Day, who called a strike on Beckley, and big Jake yelled murder in both English and German.

Tommy Leach contributed one of the pretty plays of the game in the second inning, when by fast work he broke down Steinfeldt's bold bid for a single and shot the ball over to Wagner in time to head off the runner. It was a pretty as well as a quick bit of work, and the little fellow was wildly cheered by both the newsies and other spectators.

At two stages of the game yesterday it looked as though the contest would have to be called on account of darkness, and when the game was finished it was so dark the spectators could hardly see the ball. This led Secretary Pulliam to decide on calling the games at 3 o'clock, and the next two contests will start at that hour.

The champions are red hot after that league record of victories, and they will go after the next two games with a vengeance. The pitchers today will likely be Tannehill and Hahn, and there should be a fine battle between the left-handers. It is also likely that Bransfield will be in today's game, and with Wagner at short the team's batting should be improved.

STICKS TO CHICAGO.

George Davis Denies That He Will Return to the Giants.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—George Davis, the White Stocking shortstop, will not jump his American league contract, in spite of the announcements from National league sources that he has accepted an offer from the New York club to play in McGraw's team next year.

Davis last night just before his departure for New York denied the stories that have been published assigning him to John T. Brush's team. He admitted having received a tempting offer from McGraw, but his reply had been that he was under contract for next year, and unless some arrangement could be made whereby he could secure his release from his contract with Comiskey he could not consider the offer. As Comiskey is on record as rating Davis the best shortstop or third baseman in the country, there is little likelihood of his letting him go under any circumstances.

APPRECIATES KINDNESS.

Pitcher Winters Signs With Collins' Team Again.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 2.—George Winters, the Boston American league pitcher, has signed a two years' contract with that club at a yearly salary of $3,000. He has received tempting offers from National league clubs, but Winters was in a Boston hospital almost all summer, suffering from typhoid fever, and has just been brought to his home in this county, accompanied by a nurse sent by the Boston club, which has borne all expenses of his illness.

FINALLY START CIRCUIT RACES

MADE THE MILE IN 2:08

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2.—Cresceus, George H. Ketcham's champion trotter, made an attempt to lower the world's record at the opening of the grand circuit meeting in this city today, but failed on account of a bad track. He covered the mile in 2:08, which is the fastest ever hung out on the Oakley track, where the races were held.

The condition of the track prevented fast time, but the sport was exciting and the betting good. The best contest of the day was the 2:10 trot, which was won by Charley Mac. In each of the five heats the field crossed the wire in a close bunch and the winner had nothing to spare.

Before Cresceus was sent his exhibition mile he was brought on the track alongside of Dan Patch, the king of pacers, and the two went a half mile together amid wild cheering from the spectators. This is the first time that the champion pacer and champion trotter have appeared together on a race track in an exhibition and the crowd appreciated the treat.

In his exhibition today Cresceus was paced by two running horses. He was driven by his owner, George H. Ketcham of Toledo, O. After the exhibition Mr. Ketcham said:

"I am sorry that the track was not fit for a record-breaking performance today. Cresceus was never in better condition than he is right now. The track today was so soft that it gave away under the horse's foot and he could not go along at his usual gait."

The first quarter was made by Cresceus in :32¼, the half in 1:04½, the three-quarters in 1:36¾ and the mile in 2:08 flat. Tomorrow's card is a grand one and horsemen look for the best day's racing of the grand circuit. Summaries:

TWO NEW GUARDS.

East End Football Team Is Strengthened by Addition of Men.

All of the candidates for the football team of the East End Athletic association were out at practice at the Baum street grounds last night. Two 20-minute halves were played by the regular team and the scrub eleven. The regulars made several touch downs while the scrubs were unable to come within several yards of their opponents' scoring line.

Two new players joined the team yesterday, John Bushman of Homestead, a candidate for guard, and Mike Burke of West Virginia. Bushman is a novice at the game, and wore the moleskin for the first time in his life last night. He showed up well in practice and handles himself with much agility. Burke is also a candidate for guard, and his preliminary work stamps him as one of the fixtures in the line.

After the practice game the members of the teams were thoroughly drilled in signals, punting and passing, and Coach Joe Heh is much pleased with the showing made. Capt. Willis has charge of the backs, and is putting his candidates through the hardest kind of work.

Manager P. J. Walsh yesterday closed a contract for the lease of Friendship park for two games on October 11 and 18. Two good attractions will be secured for these dates.

FLEMING WON THE SHOOT AND MEDAL

PITTSBURGHER HAD HIGH AVERAGES.

Fine weather marked the closing day of the North Side Gun club shooting tournament and much higher scores were made than yesterday.

The attendance was higher than on the first day, over 40 shooters participating in the various events.

The high score for the day was made by L. B. Fleming of Pittsburgh, who broke 157 out of 175. Kelsey was second with 155, Atkinson third with 152 and Deniker fourth with 150.

The feature of the program was the contest for the championship of Western Pennsylvania, resulting in a victory for L. B. Fleming, who retains the title and medal by defeating W. L. Harper with a total of 90 out of 100 to 82 for Harper.

The high average for the two days was won by L. B. Fleming of Pittsburgh with a score of 313 out of 350. Watson of Sewickley was second with 311, Atkinson of New Castle third with 307 and Kelsey fourth with 304. The scores:

THE OCEAN VIEW WON BY HERMIS

HE CARRIED TOP WEIGHT

Andy Williams Was Favorite for the Event, and the Backers of Hermis Raked in Great Wads of Cash.

New York, Oct. 2.—L. V. Bell's Hermis, by winning the Ocean View handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, at Gravesend today, stamps himself as one of the best three-year-olds in training, say racing men. The Hermence colt picked up 126 pounds, and giving away weight from 10 to 26 pounds to his field, won in a gallop by three lengths.

There was always a good price against the winner on the belief that he could not give away so much and win. Andy Williams closed favorite, while Igniter, on his previous good races, was heavily played. Hermis was first to break and showed the way for a half mile, then gave way to Huntressa, who made the running to the stretch. Hermis in the meantime was in and out of pockets all down the backstretch and around the far turn.

Simply Galloped Home.

It was not until the stretch was reached that the Bell colt commenced to run, and he simply galloped home an easy winner on his own courage. Rice, his rider, was practically of no assistance to him. The fight for the place was very close and exciting. Huntressa got the verdict by a head from Igniter. Jockey Lyne carried off the riding honors, piloting two winners. The weather was clear and the track fair. Summaries:

EASTERN COLT WON.

Those Who Backed Jack Demund Had a Good Thing.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Jack Demund, the good eastern colt, easily won the third race, the feature of today's Harlem card, with 15 to 2 laid against him. Philo, the favorite, finished a tired second, although having plenty to spare over Duellist, who stopped badly after leading throughout and having four lengths to the good turning into the stretch. Weather cloudy; track he

TWO NEW PLAYERS JOIN BIG ELEVEN

FINE FULLBACK COMING

His Name Is Being Kept Under Cover for the Present—Coach Richardson Gave His Candidates Severe Practice Work.

Nelson Hare, the Carlisle Indian end, and John Lang, formerly with Washington and Jefferson, joined the Pittsburgh football eleven at the training grounds in Greensburg yesterday. Capt. Richardson and his men put in a busy day, having an hour and a half's signal practice in the morning and two and one-half hours of the hardest kind of practice on the field in the afternoon.

In the afternoon the players lined up as follows: Shrontz, r. e.; Lang and Barney, r. t.; McNulty and Barney, r. g.; Shirring and Barney, c.; Kerkhoff, l. g.; McCutcheon and Fightner, r. t.; Hare and Donahoe, l. e.; Richardson, Sherlock and Hare, q. b.; Crolius and Donahoe, r. h.; McChesney, f. b.; Dushane, l. h.

A high-class full back will join the team within a week, but his name is not made public at the present time.

Capt. Richardson today will likely announce his line-up for Saturday's game. It is possible that Fred Crolius may be found in the position of full back in the opening engagement with W. U. P. at Greensburg. Crolius is better than last year, and this means that he is a tower of strength to the team. He hits the line like a bulldog and goes in low. He has the fashion of bringing his knees high in the air, and many a man can tell a weird tale of "the knee of Crolius." No man is big enough to scare him, and, as they all look alike to "Crow," something has to give way when he hits the line.

HARVARD'S CRACK WON.

W. J. Clothier Captured the Intercollegiate Championship in Tennis Tourney.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—W. J. Clothier of Harvard university, the Pennsylvania tennis champion, today won the intercollegiate tennis championship on the grounds of the Merion Cricket club at Haverford. Clothier and his college mate, E. W. Leonard, defeated I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned of Princeton, for the intercollegiate championship in doubles.

In the semi-finals of the doubles Wright and Larned beat R. King and H. J. Rendall of Princeton, and in the semi-final of the singles Clothier beat W. S. Warland of Harvard, and Leonard beat R. Bishop of Harvard. In the final doubles Clothier fell, slightly sprained his ankle, and was unable to do himself justice. He at first hesitated to play Leonard in the single championship match on account of his injury, but after a brief rest pluckily contested and won the tennis premiership of the college world in three straight sets after losing the first set. The summaries of today's play follow:

Individual championship, semi-finals—W. J. Clothier, Harvard, beat W. S. Warland, Harvard, 6-2, 7-5; E. W. Leonard, Harvard, beat R. Bishop, Harvard, 9-7, 3-6, 6-1.

Final—W. J. Clothier, Harvard, beat E. W. Leonard, Harvard, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles, semi-final—I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned, Princeton, beat R. King and H. J. Rendall, Princeton, 6-2, 7-5.

Final—W. J. Clothier and E. W. Leonard, Harvard, beat I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned, Princeton, 6-0, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

SNAPPY WORK.

Wash-Jeff Candidates Put Through Lively Practice.

WASHINGTON, PA., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—The W. and J. football team had a good practice this afternoon. The tackles and back field were given considerable work in running with the ball, while the scrubs, under the direction of Coach Greene, tried out several new plays and the 'varsity was given practice in breaking them up. Several new candidates were out.

Hipp of McDonald, a crack baseball player, was at end for the scrubs and it looks as if he would make a good man. He is quick and one of the speediest runners in the squad. He is considered a good find. Coach Greene is keeping his eye on other players on the scrub eleven and there are indications that several of them will be given a position on the 'varsity in next Saturday's game with the Marietta college team. The students are preparing to organize rooting teams for the big games here, the first of which will be played Saturday a week, with the Western Reserve university of Cleveland, and the second with Lafayette college during the centennial week.

PLEASED WITH PENNSY.

Eleven's Good Showing in Two Games Creates Enthusiasm.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Oct. 2.—That the two clear cut victories that the University of Pennsylvania football team has already achieved on Franklin field have been highly encouraging to the devotees of the college game was evidenced by the fact that today over three score candidates were out for practice, and nearly 500 students viewed the work of the embryo stars.

Today's practice was full of life and ginger. Head Coach Williams did not spend all his time with the 'varsity squad on Franklin field proper, but went over to the west end of the field to get a line on a number of new candidates. Of these, Baird and Brenton came in for considerable attention.

STIFF PRACTICE.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Today was a day of happenings on the Cornell gridiron despite a scrimmage on the program for today. For ten minutes 'varsity and scrubs struggled and the first eleven scored twice against stiff opposition.

Coffin kicked a goal from the 45-yard line, the ball being at an especially difficult angle. In both defense and offense the first eleven showed marked improvement and the coaches' hearts were gladdened. However, the quantity of new material has gradually dwindled away until now the squad is smaller by a half from that of two weeks ago. Some of the biggest line men have left permanently.

THE LIPTON CHALLENGE.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Special Cable.)—"You may expect to hear something about the challenge for the America's cup in a week." This was a statement made by Sir Thomas Lipton to a group of acquaintances at the Hotel Cecil today. The baronet had driven into the courtyard of the Cecil in a light automobile with his friend, Mr. A. W. Macdonochie, M. P., and was in one of his characteristically jovial humors. He was willing to discuss flying machines, automobiles, parliamentary contests, almost anything but yacht races, and the statement referred to was obtained from him only with considerable effort.

Sir Thomas was asked about a rumor that he would stand for election to parliament. "Nothing in it," he declared. "I am a commercial man; not a politician. If I have any spare time, it is all for sports."

JUSTICE ARRESTED BY A HUMANE AGENT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LATROBE, PA., Oct. 2.—A clash between Justice of the Peace Alexander J. White, 60 years old, and Officer J. M. Osborne, both prominent officials of this place, tonight has stirred up great excitement and considerable feeling. White is now out on $300 bail to await a hearing on a charge of assault before Justice of the Peace Shank of West Latrobe.

Osborne, who, besides being night policeman is the humane agent, went into Justice White's office this evening. He demanded a transcript of a case that had been heard before White. The men got into an argument. White, it is said, flatly refused to give Osborne the transcript and ordered the latter from the office. Osborne refused to go. It is said that White then walked up to him and pushed Osborne out of the office, slamming the door.

Osborne is alleged to have demanded admittance again and finally pushed the door in. It is also alleged that he grasped White by the collar and hustled him out of the office, then half dragged and shoved the old man through the streets to the lockup. A crowd of several hundred men, boys and women followed the officer and his aged prisoner. The crowd all seemed to sympathize with White, and many satirical remarks were passed about Osborne's manner of taking his prisoner to jail.

When they arrived at the lockup White demanded that Burgess James E. Toner be sent for. On the arrival of that official a hearing was held and White released. Osborne then went before Justice of the Peace Shank in West Latrobe and filed a charge of assault against White. The latter was soon at Shank's office and waived a hearing. Bail placed at $300 was furnished and White was released from custody.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Zanesville, O., Oct. 2.—The African Methodist Episcopal conference is in a fair way to split upon the rock of "Booker T. Washington and industrial education as a means of salvation for the race."

President Joshua Jones of Wilberforce university, in an address upon education, criticised the prominence that has been given to Washington and the Tuskegee institute, saying it could not be compared with Wilberforce university, about which not half the fuss is made, but which gives its pupils an intellectual training equal to that of the great colleges.

The conference immediately took sides and the discussion was furious. At an executive meeting this evening the matter was partially patched up by the adoption of a resolution denying that the conference condemned Washington and his institution.

BURGLAR SHOT DEAD BY RAILWAY EMPLOYE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., Oct. 2.—Five masked and desperate burglars made a bold attempt to rob the safe of the Montoursville Passenger Railway Company early this morning. In a terrific battle with revolvers, which followed the attempt, one of the desperadoes was killed and two others slightly wounded by Engineer Alem Bly, who was shot twice by the robbers.

Shortly before 2 o'clock, while Engineer Bly was at work repairing a water pump in the power house of the railway company he was startled by a terrific crash caused by the front door of the building being battered with a heavy plank. Bly rushed to a desk which contained his revolver and as he turned to face the intruders he was met with a fusilade of shots from the revolvers in the hands of five men, who had the lower part of their faces covered with handkerchiefs.

One of the shots struck Bly in the hip and another made a flesh wound in the thigh. The wounds did not disable the engineer, however, and he leveled his revolver and fired at one of the burglars, who was several feet in advance of his pals. The bullet pierced the heart of the desperado and he fell dead. The engineer kept on shooting at the rest of the gang, who kept up a continuous fire, wounding two of them slightly.

After his revolver had been emptied Bly retreated through a rear door of the boiler house, ran to a nearby factory and aroused the watchman, who sounded an alarm by blowing the factory whistle. While Bly was absent the robbers dragged the body of their dead pal to the outside of the building, where they left it and fled. Up to a late hour no trace of them has been found.

Mr. Hanlon's men have surveyed a line from New Castle to New Galilee, there connecting with the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western. This line has been purchased by Col. Herrick of Cleveland, and his associates in the Wabash organization, and gives an entrance into Lisbon."

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery, nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles, with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having any effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple, because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics," "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

ALLEN PROVES A SEEMING ALIBI

STEPS TRACED ON JULY 23

Attorney Rody P. Marshall sprung a number of sensations in the Allen murder case yesterday, and when the defense had finished it was conceded by attorneys who have watched the progress of the trial that he had furnished one of the most complete alibis for his client ever heard in criminal court. His star witness was a Mrs. Low of Braddock, who testified that she was in the drinking room when the murder was committed; that she saw the crime and the perpetrator, and that Joseph Allen was not that man.

Before introducing this testimony, the attorney furnished witness after witness who traced the defendant's actions on the day of the murder, locating him in Carnegie a short time before Achsah King was killed in Currans' saloon, in Allegheny when witnesses for the commonwealth swore they saw him in Pittsburgh, and in a saloon in Carnegie at the time the murder was committed.

An Exciting Day.

The defense attempted to impeach the testimony of almost every one of the commonwealth's witnesses, placing city detectives and police officers on the stand for that purpose.

The commonwealth has threatened to have witnesses for the defense arrested, and the defense has averred that before it is through with this case, some persons may find themselves in jail, charged with perjury. Altogether it was an exciting day, extremely favorable to Allen.

Attorney Marshall announced to friends that this was probably his last murder case, as he has not had a wink of sleep for several nights. He was ably assisted in the preparation of the case by Walter Sullivan, who was trained by "Glorious Old Tom" Marshall, in his day the greatest criminal lawyer in Pittsburgh.

Roach Tells of the Arrest.

The second day of the trial of Joseph Allen for the murder of Aschah King practically brought the case to a close, so far as the hearing of witnesses is concerned.

District Attorney Haymaker informed the court that he would have two or three witnesses to be heard this morning, but that the hearing would not consume more than 20 minutes. The attorney for the defense said that he would like to have two important witnesses brought for the morning hearing, and will probably bring in Thomas Kelly of Wylie avenue, and a man from Canonsburg.

When court convened Mary McDonald, or Nellie Reed, as she is better known, was called to the stand to finish her testimony, begun Wednesday. Her examination was brief, nothing new being brought out.

James Williams, the porter at Curran's saloon, was recalled and testified to seeing a man going away from the saloon toward Webster avenue about 5:15 o'clock. He was walking rapidly and had a bloody handkerchief wrapped about his right hand. After meeting the man he went to the saloon and saw the woman lying on the floor.

Detective John J. Roach, whose work brought about Allen's capture, took the stand and told of the arrest at Findlay, O., on August 5. He told of Allen fainting when he said, "Joe, I want you." After he had recovered, he did not answer his sister, Mrs. Paxton, when she asked what he was arrested for.

Roach testified that the prisoner, when asked questions regarding Pittsburgh and the murder, said he did not know where Wylie avenue was located or Curran's saloon.

Marshall Outlines Defense.

William Curran, proprietor of the saloon, was recalled, and denied telling a policeman that he had not seen the King woman for six months.

William Burchill was recalled and denied that he told Capt. McClelland that he could not give a description of the man accompanying the woman.

Attorney Marshall opened the defense by declaring that Allen's plea would be an alibi; that Allen had nothing to hide and would take the stand to show it was impossible that he killed the woman. Mr. Marshall also threatened to impeach the commonwealth's witnesses.

All eyes were on Allen as he walked to the stand. His story as brought out by questions was that he worked on the Robert Jenkins from July 19 to July 22, leaving the boat at Duquesne and coming to the "combine" office to get his check for $5 cashed. He could not get it cashed that night and spent the night on some of the boats at the foot of Market street.

The morning of July 23 he shipped on the steamer Lookout, but only worked about two hours, as the gangway was dangerous. He then went and got his check cashed and met George Kane at about 8:30 and went to Magee's saloon in Market street. He then met Harry Craig, whom he had known in Steubenville, about 10 o'clock, and after running around the saloons awhile went to Allegheny at 11:15 a. m. to see Mrs. M. McCune at No. 17 Snowden street, staying there about a half hour. Craig was with him all the time, and from Mrs. McCune's they went to Alice McGraw's, No. 74 Robinson street, to look for Mrs. McCune's daughter, Alice, who worked there. She was not there and the two came to town again and went to Second avenue and Grant street, where they met John Warfield, a colored barber both had known in Steubenville.

Allen Denies Knowing Woman.

Craig left them about 2:30 p. m. to return to Steubenville and Allen went straight down Second avenue to Liberty avenue and took a car for Carnegie. It was then about 3 p. m. He was partially drunk when he got to Carnegie and got on a car to come back to Pittsburgh.

The motorman told him it would be five or ten minutes before the car would start, and he went to Morgan's saloon to get a drink. He stayed round there till 5 or 6 o'clock and then went back of an oil shed and slept till morning. Then he again went to Morgan's, and after that took a freight for Steubenville.

He told of going to Findlay, where he had worked two days when arrested. He said that on July 23 he wore a dark suit, slouch hat and a blue shirt without stripes.

He denied ever having on the shirt shown in evidence; that he ever saw Achsah King or was in Curran's saloon.

He said Detective Roach made him put the shirt on and that he wore it when photographed in Pittsburgh. He was an excellent witness in his own behalf.

District Attorney Haymaker questioned him as to his nativity and early history.

Court adjourned at noon with Allen on the stand and when it again convened Mr. Haymaker continued the cross examination. He denied telling his brother Levi that he had killed a woman in Pittsburgh.

He identified a letter he had written his brother from Findlay requesting him to keep him posted as to how everything was going; if not right, to write him, using the name he had given. This, he said, referred to his divorce suit.

Capt. Hamilton of the Robert Jenkins testified that a man named Joseph Allen had worked on the boat, but could not positively identify Allen as the man. He left the boat on July 22.

Capt. Harger of the Lookout said a man named Joseph Allen had worked a few hours of July 23 on his boat, but he was not certain Allen was that man, as he did not see him.

Craig Corroborates Allen.

Mr. Barber, paymaster of the coal combine office, paid two checks on the morning of July 23, one to Joseph Allen and the other to Harry Craig.

Harry Craig was put on the stand and said he had known Allen all his life. He corroborated Allen's story as to their movements up to the time he left, at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. M. McCune told of the visit of the two men to her home in Allegheny. She was positive as to their being there between 11:30 o'clock and noon, as she was getting dinner ready at the time. She sent them to Alice McGraw's to inquire after her daughter.

Alice McGraw told of the men coming to her house and staying about a half hour. She did not know the day, but it was in the latter part of July.

John Warfield, the colored barber, also corroborated Allen's testimony, but could not tell how he was so positive as to the date.

Thomas Mey, a motorman on the Carnegie division, said he remembered the date, as it was the day following the opening of a new branch line to Heidelberg, and he had that run. The hour was given to the miute, as it was the schedule on which his car ran.

He testified that when his car reached the end of the line at Heidelberg he saw Allen sitting on a stone wall near the bridge. He was attracted to him by his calling to him in a drunken manner. Allen climbed into the car and was told the car did not leave for about nine minutes. That was at 3:57 p. m. Allen was drunk and Mey was afraid he would say something to offend Mrs. Watt, who got on the car.

Allen got off the car and started toward Morgan's saloon to get a drink. He again asked how long before the car started for Pittsburgh and was told he had time enough to get drunk and sober again. Then Allen left.

Saw Allen in Carnegie.

Mrs. Watt corroborated this testimony. She is a very neat, respectable appearing woman and her testimony carried considerable weight with those in hearing. She was positive as to the date and hour, as she was going to see her doctor and was a little late.

Both she and Mey were positive that the prisoner was the man seen there.

Detective Charles McGovern was called and told of going to the scene of the murder shortly after it occurred. He talked with the Reed woman and said she told him she could not tell whether the murderer was black or white. He said she was not in condition to know very much about the affair.

Ex-Captain of Police George McClelland was called and said Curran had told him that the King woman had not been in his house before for six months; that she was not allowed there. When asked why, he replied, "for reasons of my own."

The captain said that William Burchell had told him that he could not give a description of the woman's companion.

Bert Feighley, the "ice man," who was under arrest for the murder, took the stand, called by the defense. The court would not allow him to answer the question if he was arrested for the murder.

He said although several women were brought in to look at him, but one was positive in her identification of him as the man who was with Miss King that afternoon, and that one was Annie Collins, who now identifies Allen as the man, and who has been in jail as a witness.

Martha Steger, who lives at No. 512 Wylie avenue, a few doors from Curran's, said she saw Achsah King about 15 minutes of 5 o'clock, just prior to her death. She was at an Italian fruit store on Wylie avenue when the King woman came along. She knew her well. With her were two companions, a man and a woman.

Mrs. Steger's Strong Story.

She described the man as wearing a dark suit, soft hat, higher in the crown than the one in evidence, and a blue cheviot shirt with white stripes. His nose, she said, was a Roman nose; that Allen was not the man she was positive, and she took a good look at him.

District Attorney Haymaker tried to break down this testimony by declaring that she had identified Feighley as the man, but this she denied, saying she only said he resembled him very much, having a Roman nose.

Mrs. Paxton, Allen's sister, at whose house he was arrested in Findlay, took the stand. She presented a very neat appearance in a light tan suit. She declared that the shirt in evidence did not belong to her brother; that Roach found it in a closet and insisted on taking it along. She said her brother was subject to fainting spells when under excitement, as was his father.

Howard Ford and J. McKee were each called to testify that Annie Collins was not believed by those who knew her well.

Mrs. Low Saw the Murder.

Mrs. Mary Low was called to the stand and proved to be the star witness held in reserve by the defense, as she claimed she was in the room and witnessed the murder, thus contradicting Nellie Reed and others.

She said she had just come in from Braddock, where she was cooking, and had only been in Curran's a few minutes, when Miss King entered and sat down beside her.

Her detail of the affair differed but little from that given by Nellie Reed, except that the man was called "Jack" by the King woman, and that he did not put his hand in his pocket before striking her wife the knife.

She was so close, that she heard the blade strike with a sickening thud and then, frightened, she ran out of the place.

She was positive Allen was not the man and described the man similar to that given by Mrs. Steger.

At Morgan's, Mr. Darnetz, the bartender, was called, but did not remember seeing Allen, because of so many strangers, although Allen picked him from several men as the man who refused him drinks that day, which showed Allen had seen him at Morgan's.

J. Whitlaw, an express man at Liberty and Fifth avenues, saw Miss King and a man at that corner at 4 o'clock. He knew her and watched them buy fruit at the corner stand. He was positive that Allen was not that man.

Peter McGraw, a collector, for whom he would not say, was in Nill & Nee's saloon when the King woman and the man were there at 3:30. Allen was not that man, he said.

Supt. McAleese was put on the stand to rebut the testimony given by Mrs. Steger relative to identifying Feighley, but court adjourned.

NEW CONCERN TO HANDLE EXPRESS

An Organization of Local Haulers Will Soon Be Effected.

TO USE MOTORWAGONS

Big Downtown Warehouse Will Be Leased and Used as a Central Office—Capitalization Will Be Near $50,000.

An organization composed of all the local expressmen in Pittsburgh, Allegheny and the surrounding towns will soon be effected for the purpose of handling express, freight and package matter throughout the Pittsburgh district. The company will be capitalized at about $50,000, and eventually will introduce motor wagons for city hauling. W. E. Borland of Hazelwood is spoken of as president of the new concern.

Plans for this combination have been under consideration for some time, and since the Pittsburgh Express Company abandoned its trolley lines and went out of the business the way has been paved for the new company to enter the field under the most favorable auspices.

The local express haulers who during the last 15 years have operated individually, through the Union local express office at No. 926 Liberty avenue, have been offered good money for their interests. They will be asked to sell out and accept two-thirds of their price in cash and take the remainder in stock in the new company. According to the plans all the haulers will be retained in the combinations' employ as superintendents of teams and warehouses, or to act as downtown agents.

Who the Local Expressmen Are.

In the Union express office there are now 13 local expressmen. It is intended to purchase the interest and good will of each of these haulers. They operate in all parts of the two cities and the suburbs, as follows: Hazelwood, W. E. Borland; Scott's Bridge, A. K. Duff; Homestead, G. W. Burdette; Troy hill, Andrew Suess; Sharpsburg, Aspinwall, Etna and Lawrenceville, Fix Bros.; Crafton, Ingram, Idlewood and Sheraden, J. W. Boberg; West End and Elliott, Mrs. A. Fleischmann; Millvale and Herrs Island, Edward Sambach; Knoxville, Allentown, Mr. Oliver and Beltzhoover, W. R. Barrett; Mt. Washington and Duquesne heights, James Scott; Perrysville avenue and Charles street, C. L. Thoen; McKees Rocks and Esplen, George Fleischmann; Allegheny, W. J. Wampler.

Sixty wagons are operated by the 13 haulers and each is obliged to keep one wagon downtown throughout the day to attend to the gathering of packages and freight. Under the new management it is proposed to use about four wagons for this work and keep the other teams for delivery. A large central warehouse will be leased in the downtown district to be used for warehouse, stables and the general offices of the company.

Great Saving in Expenses.

The plans promise a saving of expenses all around. The telephone bill, which at present is $864 a year, will be reduced to $191, and other expenses will be cut down in the same proportion.

The union of the expressmen was effected 15 years ago and the general office was located in Seventh street. Five years ago they leased a part of the McCance block, paying $1,000 a year.

The use of the automobile in the express business will be an innovation in Pittsburgh. The use of automobiles has been declared to be feasible in the routes covering the more level parts of the city and they will be introduced at an early date. It is claimed that the use of the motorwagon, for the collection of small packages would result in the greatest possible expedition in handling matter of that class and be an improvement over trolley cars.

Society.

THE directors of the First Allegheny Day Nursery and Temporary Home yesterday observed the first reception and anniversary donation day in the new home in Ohio street, Allegheny. The house, much larger and more commodious than the old one, in Race street, was crowded, afternoon and evening, and donations of money, groceries and clothing for the little children were received.

The new nursery and home was purchased the first of the year from Dr. Hamilton and after many important alterations and additions, was occupied on April 1. The location is regarded as far better than the former one, being more central. It was purchased for $14,000, and $900 was expended in the changes. The directors have offered the former nursery and home in Race street for sale to reduce the payments which are still due on the new building. There are 34 children, principally babies, in the temporary home, but the number in the day nursery varies from half a dozen to twice that number.

The recently purchased house has been thoroughly adapted to the needs of the institution. It consists of four floors and a basement almost entirely above ground. The basement is light and is used for the kitchens and childrens' dining room, and there the tables are surrounded by high chairs, to which the little ones must be lifted. Upon the first floor are the childrens' playroom, the matron's dining room and sitting room, and the reception room. The second and third floors are used for dormitories and are filled with little iron beds with clean white linen, into which the babies were tucked yesterday afternoon and evening. Upon the fourth floor is the infirmary, which can be shut off completely from the rest of the house in case of some contagious disease.

Mrs. Harry Darlington and Mrs. K. A. Jamison have contributed largely to the work of the Allegheny Day Nursery and Temporary Home and are life members of the board of management. Mrs. Sloan is president; Mrs. J. A. McConnell, first vice president; Mrs. C. L. Rose, second vice president; Mrs. John Allison, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. Rodebaugh, recording secretary; Mrs. M. L. Barr, treasurer; Mrs. W. A. Black, donation secretary. Directors, Mrs. Mary Benner, Mrs. John Bailey, Mrs. J. D. Chantler, Mrs. John MacClurg, Miss Belle McCrea, Mrs. Levi Colvin, Mrs. M. E. Graham, Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. William Hice, Mrs. John Lyon, Mrs. John Morton, Mrs. C. W. Newell, Mrs. E. Peebles, Mrs. A. Plain Pancakes.

Measure two cups of sifted flour, add two teaspoonfuls baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. Sift all together. Beat the yolks of three eggs light, add them to three cups of milk. Put flour into a bowl, making a hollow in the center. Mix in half of the liquid; then beat the batter full of bubbles; add remainder of the milk, making a thin, smooth batter. Then beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth and add to the batter, folding them in lightly but thoroughly. This will make a nice waffle batter by adding two tablespoonfuls of melted butter.

Flannel Cakes.

Beat one tablespoonful of butter and one of sugar to a cream; add two eggs well beaten. Measure two cups of sifted flour and sift again with a teaspoonful salt. Add to the sugar, butter and eggs, alternating with milk sufficient to make a thin smooth batter.

Bread Pancakes.

Soak stale bread in sour milk over night; in the morning press out the milk. To two cups of the softened crumbs add two eggs well beaten, two teaspoonfuls of baking soda dissolved in hot water, and flour enough to make a thin, smooth batter. Also add a pinch of salt.

Cornmeal Pancakes.

Scald a cup of white cornmeal with enough boiling water to make a thin mush. Cover and let it stand half an hour. Add half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one well-beaten egg and two cups of flour sifted, with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Add enough milk to make a smooth batter that will run easily. Entire wheat flour may be used instead of the white flour, using a little less to quantity of milk.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

M. M. writes—Is your "What to eat and how to cook it" published in book form? If so where can I get it? I have clipped and clipped from the paper, but am not well satisfied with so many loose papers; would be glad to get the whole in book form.

The recipes which are published under heading referred to can only be obtained through this channel and would fill several volumes if put in book form. We would suggest that you arrange them in scrap books of convenient size and classified for easy reference.

A Sweet Salad Sauce.

Mrs. A. R. D. writes for the recipe for a sweet salad sauce. Beat the yolks of four eggs until very light; and gradually beat in a cup of powdered sugar, add a tiny pinch of salt, then beat until the sugar is dissolved; then add the juice of a lemon, making it more or less acid to suit the taste. Keep on ice until thoroughly chilled before mixing with the fruit.

How Irene Will Save $5.92 Today

IRENE

IRENE is a business girl, who earns her own money and knows what a dollar means. Yesterday morning, coming down town on the car, she read over Wm. Campbell's list of Friday Bargains, and made some pencil notations on the margin of the paper. This morning she'll come to the "People's Store" bright and early, because it is easier to save $5.92 than to earn it.

IRENE will soon need a jaunty new wrap. The Campbell ad. gave her a "pointer" on a special sale of Black, All-Wool Kersey Jackets, 19 inches long, worth $7.50, which will be one of the Friday Bargains at Campbell's today for $5.00.

IRENE thinks it's about time to exchange her straw hat for something less summery, so today, at Campbell's, she will buy a Camel's Hair Felt Outing Hat, trimmed with a fancy quill, and worth $1.98, for 98c.

IRENE need's a new walking skirt, so she is going to get one of the $4.00 Full-Flare Pedestrian Skirts, in all-wool checks, at Campbell's today for $2.49.

IRENE shivered Wednesday, so today she'll doff her white shirt waist and don a warmer waist of fine French flannel. This waist she'll select from the $1.69 line at Campbell's this morning and will pay for it $1.48.

IRENE'S shoes are somewhat the worse for wear, so today at Campbell's she'll treat her feet to a pair of Kidskin Lace Shoes, with extension soles and military heels, certainly worth $1.75, for $1.38.

IRENE'S back hair bothers her, so she'll save the price of a postage stamp by buying a "New Century" Back Comb, worth 10c, for 8c at Campbell's today.

IRENE wears dainty turn-over collars. Instead of paying 5c apiece for them she will get three at Campbell's this morning for 10c.

IRENE uses Transparent Glycerine Soap, and the big 10c bar she'll get at Campbell's this morning will cost her 7c.

IRENE dotes on lovely neck and belt ribbons. Today she will buy 2½ yards of All-Silk Taffeta Ribbons, 4 inches wide and worth 25c a yard, for 16c a yard, at Campbell's, and go to church Sunday morning looking as fresh as a daisy.

BANK OF ENGLAND RATE ADVANCED TO 4 PER CENT

By JOHN O. BAGLIN, Financial Editor.

The only real development of general application to the markets yesterday was the action of the governors of the Bank of England in advancing the minimum rate of discount from 3 to 4 per cent. This action was not wholly unexpected, but it occurs just a month earlier than last year, when a similar advance was made. On February 7 last the rate was reduced from 3½ to 3 per cent, and it remained unchanged until yesterday. It is probable that the high rates for call loans ruling in Wall street, and the probability that if they were maintained for any length of time they would attract gold from abroad, had something to do with determining the action of the board, and the effect here will probably be to still further postpone relief from gold imports. The reserves of the Bank of England, however, made a considerable drop, from 53.87 per cent last week to 44.63 per cent, which compares with 48.6 per cent reported for the corresponding week last year. In Wall street the money market remained firm at about 8 per cent, the extremes being 6 and 10. The sub-treasury paid to the banks $200,000 on account of telegraphic transfer from San Francisco, and transferred $100,000 currency to New Orleans. During the latter part of the day there was considerable speculation as to the character of tomorrow's bank statement. The form of the latter will be changed on account of the ruling of the secretary of the treasury in relieving the banks from holding a reserve against government deposits. The only significant change, however, will be in reporting United States deposits held, and other deposits, separately. Heretofore they have been lumped and the average for the week reported.

The stock market was dull and irregular, the total sales amounting to only about 500,000 shares, as compared with 960,000 shares the day before. The lower London quotations caused some irregularity at the opening, and it appeared that every time the pools attempted to create bullish enthusiasm the call money rate stiffened, indicating that the banks are opposed to any revival of bull speculation at this time. Reading opened weak, selling at 71¾ on the statement of earnings for August, which showed a deficit in meeting fixed charges of $510,807, as compared with a surplus of $456,615 for the same month last year. For July and August the deficit amounts to $1,027,000, figures which are eloquent of the direct consequences of the coal strike. The stock later rallied on buying that was credited to a banking house that is supposed to be buying control for Baltimore & Ohio, but in the late dealings it lost all the gain. The changes in the other railroad stocks were not significant, and as the dullness increased the sagging tendency became more pronounced. The outcome of the conference at Washington today between the president and the representatives of the miners and operators became of paramount interest. It was due to past disappointments and the uncertainty of the latest attempt to restore harmony that traders were disposed to await the decision.

Industrial stocks, which withstood the recent severe strain better than anything else, were quite strong during the day. Pressed Steel Car preferred was conspicuous for an advance to 93¾, the highest ever quoted, and the common advanced to 60, both closing at practically the top. American Car and Foundry was also strong and higher, which led to a revival of rumors of a combination of the two companies. The decision at Denver in the Colorado Fuel and Iron litigation was at first construed as in favor of the Gates faction, and on the theory that buying for control would be resumed traders bid the stock up to 38, but much of the gain was lost at the close. The other iron and steel stocks were steady to firm and a better feeling is growing on this class of security.

In Pittsburgh there was a continuation of the rise in trust company stocks, but the gains were not so great and the dealings were smaller. Pittsburgh Trust made a new record by advancing to $900, a final advance of $50 a share over the previous day's sale and $20 a share over the best previous bid. Only 55 shares changed hands and the price closed at $890 bid, $900 asked. Union Trust opened $250 bid to the highest price ever quoted by selling up to $612 and closing at $610, a net gain for the day of $10 a share. Real Estate Trust then opened higher at $315, advanced to $316½ and receded to $313 bid, $314½ asked at the close. On the surface it appeared as though there was some manipulation with the view to bringing out cheap stock. Commonwealth Trust sold at $252, an advance of $2, while Fidelity Title and Trust sold unchanged at $601, but closed at $605 bid, $650 asked, the highest bid price yet quoted. There were no sales of Union Trust, but the price advanced $10 to $2,060 bid and the stock was offered at $2,500. It is probably the closest held of all the trust company stocks. In the bank list the only transactions were in Federal National, which advanced a point to 145, and Bank of Pittsburgh, which was off a point from the last sale at 198.

In the general list Pittsburgh coal led in point of activity, opening strong at 80¾, but selling off to 80½ at the close, a loss for the day of ½. The preferred was also a fraction lower. River Coal remained dull and neglected. Pressed Steel Car preferred followed the advance in the east, selling at 92, or within a fraction of the highest price in the history of the company. Crucible Steel common sold off to 22¾, but recovered the loss and closed unchanged from the previous day. The preferred was steady at 85¾. United States Steel reacted from 40¾ to 40¼ and recovered to 40⅝. Westinghouse Air Brake opened higher at 185, but declined to 182, and the Electric stocks were quiet and unchanged. Window Glass was firmer, the common selling at 61, an advance of ⅝, and the preferred at 90½, an advance of a point. Philadelphia Company rallied to 49½ bid on the announcement of the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, which is payable November 1 to stock of record October 8. A seat in the Pittsburgh stock exchange sold at $12,000, an advance $750 over the best previous price. At the close of the market the tone was dull but steady.

The Burlington report for August showed an increase in surplus over all charges of $89,000.

Calumet & Arizona mining stock was quoted on the local exchange at 94 bid, the highest price yet reached.

Mercantile Trust was quoted at 160 bid yesterday, the first public bid that has been made for nearly a year.

Whitney & Stephenson, Robinson Bros. and Preston, Watt & Schoyer were the largest sellers of Beech Coal, and Hill & Co. were the largest buyers.

The monthly statement of the comptroller of the currency shows that 38 national banks were founded in September, with an aggregate capital stock of $3,000,000.

The fact that the $170,000,000 shipping combine should be brought out at a time when call money was quoted at double the usual rate, suggests that the stringency may not be prolonged.

At a meetings of the stockholders of the Monon railroad Temple Bowdoin of New York was elected a director in place of H. M. Works. Anthony Thomas of New York was re-elected a director.

Hill & Co. sold and R. C. Hall bought the stock exchange membership at the record price of $12,000. This is an advance of $2,000 on the price at which the new seats were sold about two weeks ago.

The clearances on the Pittsburgh stock exchange for September, according to Secretary Thomas's report, amounted to 569,900 shares, compared with 462,700 shares in August and 253,521 shares in September last year.

Judge Caldwell, in the United States circuit court at Denver, signed the formal order in the Colorado Fuel and Iron case that the officers of the company at once issue a call and that the annual election be held December 10.

The comptroller of the currency has approved of the selection of the following reserve agents: The First National bank of Pittsburgh, for the Citizens National bank of New Philadelphia, O.; the Euclid National bank of Cleveland, for the Coshocton (O.) National bank.

The September sales of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company increased 12,000 barrels, and are estimated that the output for the fiscal year will approximate 1,050,000 barrels. Last year the sales were 950,200 barrels. The annual meeting of the company will occur next month.

The comptroller of the currency has approved of the application of M. R. Ross of Cambridge Springs, Pa., R. W. Canfield, C. S. Burwell, D. W. Renner, G. C. Moore and T. B. Gerow, for authority to organize the First National bank of Cambridge Springs, with $50,000 capital.

At the opening Schmidt bid $1.95 a share for 5,000 shares Trade Dollar Mining, and offered to buy 10,000 shares at 2 cents Marland. The latter also sold 1,000 shares to Darr, Luke & Moore. Owing to the fact that the stock has never been admitted to the list, the transactions were not posted.

The comptroller of the currency has authorized the establishment of new national banks in Pennsylvania as follows: The First National bank of Hamburg, capital $50,000, Lot Atkinson president, no cashier selected; the Peoples National bank of Stewartstown, capital, $25,000, Augustus Neller, president, and Charles F. Ramsey, cashier.

Interests identified with the Railways and Light Company of America, who are also the controlling owners in the North Augusta Electric and Improvement Company of Augusta, Ga., and the Augusta-Aiken Electric railway, have consummated the purchase of a majority of the stock of the Augusta Railway and Electric Company of Augusta.

What might be called an "aristocracy of trust stocks" seems to exist in Pittsburgh just now. This is the only way to account for the bids for one and two-share lots of such stocks as are seldom seen. Some people have not just enough sentiment to be willing to pay the price and gratify the same by owning a share of Union Trust, for instance, although they would like to have the pressed rate of dividend may be practically all. The same sentiment prevents persons having from $100 to $1,000 a share profit in these stocks from selling on this boom.

During the monetary stringency the Colonial Trust has evidently been playing for popularity with depositors. For the month of September its loans increased nearly $1,000,000 ($989,400), and now foot up $17,126,154. Within the same period the deposits increased $314,486, and the total now exceeds $13,000,000. May 22 last, the date of the last official statement, the total deposits approximated $5,200,000, and the increase since that date shows a remarkable growth. The earnings for September were $52,000, compared with $49,000 for August and $48,000 for July, showing a normal increase. It is worth while mentioning, however, that this increase has apparently not been made at the expense of other institutions, but represents a general expansion of the financial interests of the community, and is therefore a justification of the organization of the larger trust companies and the increase in capital by older ones.

Talked About in Wall Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Herald this (Friday) morning says: Speculative sentiment in Wall street was again decidedly mixed, resulting in a marked irregularity in prices. Business was much curtailed, for which the observance of the Jewish New Year throughout the financial world was in part responsible. The market developed few features of importance, and gave evidences of returning to more nearly normal conditions than have prevailed for several days.

There was no enlargement of commission house business, possibly because of operators who are now receiving their monthly statements have their enthusiasm somewhat dampened by interest charges, at rates of from 12 to 15 per cent. At those rates transactions in high priced stocks are possible only for very rich men.

Commission houses quite generally advanced the opinion that banks and other prominent financial interests were seeking to curtail activity until the money market should right itself. The money market itself, however, was decidedly less of a factor than for a long time past, although the advance in the Bank of England discount sales and the advance in the price of American eagles in London, together with the strength of time money and the firmness of sterling exchange, were indications sufficiently strong to show that the money market was still a factor in the situation—and an important one at that.

The principal topic of the day, however, was unquestionably the coal strike. The kindly offices of the president are highly commended, but the attitude of labor throughout the country is disquieting.

London was again a considerable seller of stocks, influencing an irregular opening in the international list. The advance of the bank rate was sufficient excuse for this action, as it was thought probably that this would discourage the practice of the carrying of American stocks in London and might have some effect in making different renewal of maturing American loans.

How far the action of Secretary Shaw influenced the advance in the London bank rate is a matter of conjecture alone. Some bankers were inclined to the belief that it had forced the advance, while others pointed out that it could have had no influence whatsoever.

The West Virginia debt settlement committee, of which John Crosby Brown is chairman, has announced that hereafter, and until further notice, deposits of the West Virginia deferred certificates will be received by Brown Bros. & Co., subject to a penalty of 2 per cent.

COLORADO STOCK BULLED BY COURT

Gates Party Wins One Advantage by Decision on Question of Voting.

ADVANCE OF DISCOUNT

Bank of England's Action Will Check Pressure to Extend American Share Market Obligations.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Oct. 2.—A sharp upward movement in Colorado Fuel and Iron stock today followed the news that the United States circuit court at Denver had handed down an opinion directing that a meeting of stockholders be held on December 10 before a master in chancery to elect a board of directors.

The master in chancery is directed to visit New York to inform himself at first hand on certain points concerning the ownership of stock. He will report the results of the stockholders' meeting to the court, whereupon the court may order an election of officers. It appears that the court has sustained the Gates contingent's contention, that holders of stock are entitled to vote.

Bank of England's Action.

Those who are in close touch with English financial sentiment were not surprised today at the action of the Bank of England in advancing its rate of discount from 3 to 4 per cent. This is an unusually sharp advance, however, it being the custom to change the rate ½ of 1 per cent at a time.

The weekly statement of the bank discloses sufficient warrant for advancing the rate, but there is also an ulterior significance. The pressure to extend American stock market obligations lately has been very strong, according to trustworthy reports, and it was as much to counteract this as for any other reason that the governers saw fit today to tilt the rate of discount 1 per cent.

Their action was not without reflection here, although London's selling on balance in this market was moderate as compared with the selling in several former sessions of this week. Lombard street, evidently, had discounted a rise in the discount rate, and in Capel court, no doubt, a few speculative souls were short of "Americans."

Weakness of L. & N.

Louisville & Nashville fluctuates wearily on a level 20 points below its extreme top. Its weakness at these figures is a thing that greatly puzzles ordinary traders. The room crowd is bearish on the stock without knowing quite why.

Harry Weil and his crowd are said to have made a handsome turn on the short side of it, and some believe them still to be short of it; but there is not the interesting speculative play that people were saying would be seen once the Morgan party got after the bear account.

There is a great deal of uncertainty as to the ultimate situation of the minority stock. Two values are set upon the stock, indeed—one value upon that is necessary to a closing of the deal and another value of the minority holdings.

Confusing for the Bank Statement.

Bankers are of the opinion that the forthcoming bank statement will be greatly thrown out of gear as a result of the elimination of the reserve of 25 per cent heretofore carried against government deposits. The circumstance in the various items, however, will be confined to comparatively few institutions. Of the $40,000,000 government bonds deposited here to secure public deposits, $35,611,000 can be traced to nine institutions.

It is only fair to say that the actual amount of government money on deposit with the banks fluctuates. For example, the par value of the bonds of an institution on deposit may be $1,000,000, its actual deposits against which might be, say, $100,000 less.

Singer Company in Iron Business.

It was said today that negotiations had been concluded between the Singer Manufacturing Company and the Musconetcong Iron Company for the transfer of the mining plant to the sewing machine company. The deal probably will be put through on Saturday.

The plant of the Musconetcong Iron Company consists of a blast furnace at Stanhope, N. J., and several iron mines. It is said to be the intention of the Singer company to mine ore at Mine hill, Sussex county, N. J., and make its own iron, also that it will build a rolling mill at Stanhope.

HAPPENINGS IN TRADE.

Consolidated Exchange Failure.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—A. B. Stockwell, a member of the Consolidated exchange, announced today his inability to meet his contracts. He is believed to have been short of December wheat and long of Union Pacific. Stockwell was at one time associated with Jay Gould.

Strike Cuts Lehigh Earnings.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—The report of earnings of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for August shows decreases of $828,-609 in the railroad's and $1,050,431 in the coal company's gross earnings. The several Reading companies also reported large decreases in the earnings.

DECEMBER CORN CHIEF FEATURE

BULLS LOOSE IN WHEAT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Trading in corn was one of the principal features on the board of trade today, and considerable strength was manifested in both the grain and provision pits. December corn closed ⅜@⅞c higher, December wheat was ¼c lower, while oats closed ½c higher. January provisions closed from a shade lower to 10c higher.

The recent bullish sentiment in wheat was again in evidence at the opening today, due partly to smaller receipts with poor grading and unfavorable weather in some sections. Longs bought freely and offerings were somewhat restricted, which caused higher prices early in the day. Toward the close the demand was less pronounced and with more liberal offerings, prices weakened. December opened ⅛@¼c lower to a shade higher at 69⅛@69¼c. On good buying there was an advance to 70⅛@70⅜c, but later a reaction set in and the close was ⅜c lower at 69⅛@69¾c.

Receipts Are Lower.

Primary receipts were 1,265,000 bushels, against 1,242,000 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 802 cars, which with local receipts of 122 cars, with only three of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 924 cars, against 1,050 cars last year and 1,000 cars a year ago.

Corn was strong and higher with large trade, with December holding the attention of traders. Longs bought freely as did outsiders, influenced largely by reports of poor prospect of getting contract corn, due to the unfavorable weather. A light movement was also a strengthening factor. Shorts were active buyers throughout the day. Considerable realizing on the bulge caused a slight reaction. December opened ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅜c higher at 47⅝@48¼c, advanced steadily to 48¾c and the close was strong and ⅝@⅞c higher at 48¼c. Local receipts were 123 cars with 29 contract.

Some Covering in Oats.

Oats were fairly active, but without any special feature, being influenced largely by the action of corn. There was some covering by shorts and commission houses also bought moderately. Volume of trade was rather light. The close was about steady. December opened unchanged at 31⅛c, selling between 31⅜c and 31⅝c, the close being ¼c higher, at 31½c. Local receipts were 110 cars.

Provisions were strong with an active demand for October ribs early by shorts. A good demand existed during the entire session for the entire list, with local longs and commission houses taking on large quantities. Strength in corn, small receipts of hogs and higher prices at the yards, together with a large decrease in contract stocks for September, were bull factors. January pork closed 10c higher at $15.45; lard was a shade lower at $8.75@8.77½, and ribs closed 2½c higher at $8.17½.

Coffee and Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Coffee futures opened barely steady, with prices unchanged to 5 points lower, this in response to a Hamburg decline and to liberal offerings from local bears. In the early afternoon a private cable stated that the Santos receipts to be reported tomorrow would reach only 33,000 bags, or very much below what the trade had been looked for and prices jumped sharply on covering and fairly active buying by bull leaders, the net advance at 12 o'clock reaching 5 points. Bears at the close sold the market down 5 points, final figures being net unchanged to 5 points higher, and the tone barely steady. Sales amounted to 22,000 bags, including: October, 5c; November, 5.05@5.15c; December, 5.15@5.25c; January, 5.25@5.30c; March, 5.40@5.50c; May, 5.50@5.60; July, 5.70@5.80. August, 5.75c.

Drygoods Market.

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Country Roll Butter Higher. Lower Quotations for Live Poultry.

Both locally and in the west hay and grain markets are firm, with steady selling at strong quotations. Any anticipations of weakness after the closing of the September deal proved groundless, for there was a confident feeling yesterday morning, the strength shown by wheat spreading its influence over other grains. Government crop reports are of wet weather for the week past in the section of the west which feeds most of the Rocky mountains and some interfering with farm labor in harvesting late crops, although really benefiting fall-sown grain.

Late corn in the central valleys and lake region is said to be somewhat injured, and there may be lighter offerings than at first expected. Transactions in the Pittsburgh markets are chiefly in lots to fill orders that have been the groundwork for trading for two days past, with best grades of timothy hay still scarce and wanted.

The advance in navy beans, which came late Wednesday afternoon, has brought much higher prices in the local market. While $2 20 appears to be the top price, there are some holders who claim that nothing under $2 25, but this figure is not often heard.

Wet Weather Has Caused Injury.

The sudden advance is due to the reports from Michigan that wet weather is causing great injury to unharvested crops which are in need of harvesting heads, and rapidly decaying. This will make yields much lighter than the outlook a few weeks ago indicated, and will make stronger prices rule during the winter than were expected. There are still some stock of old, but these are not large, and will not have much effect upon the situation.

Flour prices are unchanged, and the market is held steady by the strong tone ruling wheat. Buyers seem to be fairly well supplied and flour is not moving in any unusual quantities, but there is a steady trade at firm quotations. Coffee is unchanged; reports from primal markets indicate steadiness, while sanitos advices speak of considerable damage to young trees, about 60,000,000 having been destroyed or damaged by frost. This, if verified, will affect quotations considerably.

Fruits and produce were quiet yesterday and the situation showed no price changes. Potatoes are lower in price at points of shipment, but receipts here are not heavy enough to bring down prices, all arrivals being readily absorbed. Some of these days there will be a turning of shipments in this direction again, and then the market will receive a little.

Peach Season Is About Over.

Peaches are coming in moderately and advices from Michigan state the season will be over next week. In the meantime buyers are not exhibiting much enthusiasm and there is no change in prices. Grapes are coming in freely and sales now are for table use. Consumers seem to have had enough, and are not anxious buyers. Receipts show some falling off in the quality of offerings.

Poultry shows changes in live turkeys and chickens, both of which are lower, with increased receipts. Dressed poultry remains at the same prices which have been ruling for some days.

Butter is firm, with an increase in price of country roll, which is not nearly so plentiful as it has been, on account of the demand for milk at the creameries, which leaves little in the hands of farmers for the making of country butter. Cheese is no higher locally, but is still held at advanced figures by manufacturers. Eggs are strong at old quotations, with good orgs scarce and in demand.

SENSATIONAL OIL STRIKE IN OHIO.

The Unity Oil Company's new strike on the James Cooper farm, near Monroeville, Monroe county, O., is attracting more attention than any other late discovery in the lower southwest fields. The well at the end of the first 24 hours had averaged 21 barrels an hour, showed no signs of weakening and acted as if it had something back of it. T. J. Vandergrift, general manager of the Unity Oil Company, says the oil was found in the Keener sand and that in every particular it is like sand and oil found in the Harper pool, six miles northeast from the Cooper farm producer. The nearest production is in the Lewisville district, three miles to the southeast. The Unity company has erected three tanks at the well and is building the fourth.

The Buckeye pipe line is laying a line to the well, and will have it completed in a few days, and then the Unity company will drill the Cooper farm well deeper. It is possible that it will increase its production when drilled deeper.

On Clear Fork, northwest of Rinards Mills, a number of new wells have been drilled. The best of the lot is Jennings Bros. & Co.'s No. 3 on the H. H. Fleighman farm. It is producing 100 barrels natural from the Big Lime.

G. C. Best, jr., has drilled No. 3 on the W. F. Anderson farm into the Keener sand and has a show for a 10-barrel pumper.

The Fisher Oil Company's No. 3 A. J. Morris is an 8-barrel pumper and the Carter Oil Company's test on the Knowlon farm is good for 10 barrels a day.

Southeast of Rinards Mills, in Washington county, the Carter Oil Company has drilled its No. 4 on the Esau McVay farm into the Big Injun sand and has a natural producer good for 25 barrels a day. In the same district the Carter Oil Company has drilled No. 3 on the Enoch McVay farm through the Big Injun sand and has a duster. It is now drilling to the Big Injun.

In the Chester Hill district, in Morgan county, the Cumberland Oil Company has completed its No. 33 on the Edward Hopkins farm and has a 10-barrel pumper. In the same district W. C. Patterson & Co. have completed No. 10 on the J. S. Parker farm and have a duster.

The Keener sand pool on Big Knot run, Ritchie county, W. Va., is not extending its producing area to any great extent. The last four wells completed show that developments are nearing the outer edges of the pool. This is true in particular as to the upper end of the pool. The Three Joes Oil Company has completed and shot its No. 6 on the Wagner farm and the well produced 300 barrels the first 24 hours.

Mallory Bros. & Co. have completed their No. 9 on the John Freeland farm and it is showing for a 150-barrel producer.

The production of the pool, as indicated by the last gauges, is 2,250 barrels a day, divided as follows: Mallory Bros. & Co.'s four wells, 700 barrels; Three Joes Oil Co.'s six wells, 950 barrels; South Penn Oil Company's two wells, 250 barrels; Drillers Oil Company and Hall, Browse & Zahniser, each one well, 100 and 250 barrels, respectively.

There is no material change in the production of the two gushers on Wolf Pen run. Both are now on very nearly even terms, each producing close to 4,000 barrels a day. Several wells are now nearing the sand and their location is such as make them good producers.

In the vicinity of Harrisville leasing is quite active. There has been quite a little drilling done in that country in the past few years. Some of the tests showed oil, but none in paying quantities.

In the Cairo district, the Hudson Oil Company has completed No. 11 on the Harkins tract and has a show for a 25-barrel producer in the salt sand. On a part of the same tract the Herron Oil Company has completed its No. 4 and has a 20-barrel producer in the salt sand.

After many delays the Cronin Oil Company has completed its first two test wells on the Michael Cronin farm, located in the Calcutta district. Pleasants county, and has two 5-barrel producers in the Cow Run sand. These wells were started three months ago.

In the Burning Springs district, Wirt county, Stewart & Young have drilled in their No. 8 on the F. F. Bailey farm and have a show for a 150-barrel producer in the Big Injun sand. This is the third good well this company has drilled in on the farm in the past two months. Nearly all of the wells in this district get their oil in the shallow or the

HAS NO RIGHTS IN MANAGEMENT

Standing of Trustee in Bankruptcy of Stockholders Decided.

JUDGE COLLIER'S RULING

Judge Collier decided yesterday that a trustee in bankruptcy of a corporation stockholder has no rights in the management of the concern. This was in the case of John A. Moore, trustee of William Corbett, a bankrupt, against the William Glew Stone and Brick Company, an action to prevent the exchange of property.

The company acquired 30 acres of land for a stone quarry. Corbett owned 30 shares in the company, and by virtue of his bankruptcy it became vested in Moore. Finding the quarry unprofitable, it was abandoned and the company arranged to deed the 30 acres to B. I. Sweeney for property in Pittsburgh.

The court finds the consideration was not grossly inadequate and that the exchange was not made for the purpose of defrauding the bankrupt; also that all of the stockholders, except the plaintiff, are willing that the exchange should be made.

Judge Collier says that Moore, as trustee, has no right to participate in the management of the concern and has no standing to invoke the power of a court of equity. It is suggested that the plaintiff has a remedy in an action for an account, and the bill is dismissed at his cost.

TRIAL LIST IS LARGE.

Number of Important Cases Come Up at November Term of United States Circuit Court.

The trial list for the November term of the United States circuit court, to be held in Pittsburgh, beginning November 10, contains 67 cases. Four suits are against insurance companies to recover for the loss of the Stevenson & Foster building, which collapsed and burned. The insurance companies claim the loss was caused by collapse and not by fire. Thirty-four suits are against railroad companies for rate discrimination. There are several suits of Austro-Hungarians against local companies for accidents.

The case of Anna B. Schultz, colored, a physician of Chicago, against Roger O'Mara and Detectives Richard Kelly and Charles McGovern, is on the list. She alleges false arrest for larceny, and wants damages for humiliation.

Another case for false arrest is that of Miss Gertie Wild against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. She recovered a large verdict on a former trial, but the court granted another trial.

An appeal has been taken to the United States court of appeals in the case of John Brislin and Antonio Vinnae against the Carnegie Steel Company, limited, involving millions for patent infringement.

Petitions in bankruptcy were filed by Alfred Edward Tonson, a druggist of Erie, whose liabilities are $4,427, with $35 assets, and Abraham London, a clerk of Pittsburgh, with liabilities of $7,206 and $120 assets.

Church Has Title.

Judge Frazer decided that the Rankin Regular Baptist church has a marketable title to a lot in Rankin. The church contracted to sell it to Isaac R. Edwards, who refused title on the ground that the former owners had inserted the provision in granting it, "for mission purposes." The court is of the opinion as there is no penalty attached, or any provision for reversion in the event of the use of the property for other purposes, the present owner has a marketable title.

James Keeling Appeals.

An appeal was taken to the supreme court in the case of James Keeling and others, against the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston Railroad Company, to restrain the defendant from appropriating South Side property. In deciding the case for the plaintiff, Judge Stowe declared that ex-Mayor W. J. Diehl did not possess power to sign measures during the ripper controversy.

Gets $1,250 for Loss of an Eye.

William Dietz, a boy, was awarded $1,250 damages yesterday in a suit brought in his behalf against Hans Dean and his son, Earl Dean. The Dietz and Dean boys were shooting rats with an airgun, when Dean accidentally shot his companion in the eye, destroying its sight.

ANOTHER STRIP OF WHARFAGE GRABBED

Forty Feet of Frontage Along Duquesne Way and the Allegheny River Seized.

Dockmaster Thomas F. Ashford, Jr., is improving the Allegheny wharf, at his own expense, he says. Without consulting Wharfmaster Jenkin Jones, a strip of 40 feet frontage along Duquesne way has been grabbed and the wagons of Booth & Flinn are filling the strip to the dock level. When it is completed it will probably be used, as is the other wharfage in the neighborhood, by Philip Flinn, local manager for the river coal combine.

The dockage in this neighborhood has been the bone of contention in many fights. One of these battles got into the courts three years ago, and the Flinn Coal Company, then occupying it, through Philip Flinn, magnanimously presented to the city what already belonged to it.

Since that time, in consideration of the generosity exhibited, the Flinn Coal Company, and, since its absorption, the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company, have enjoyed the use of the wharfage, for nothing.

Now Philip Flinn needs the 40 feet to make the property an exact rectangle. Without consulting the city official who has charge of the matter, Booth & Flinn have been preparing it for the service of the combine. Wharfmaster Jones says he will investigate. Dockmaster Ashford says he is paying for the improvement. Inasmuch as the city gets no revenue from any dockage in the vicinity, it could hardly be expected to do the work, and Ashford thought this strip might look better if it were filled in.

CHURCH TALKS ON SCHOOL SITE

Thinks Councils Have Power to Buy Necessary Ground.

PARK ALREADY SMALL

Mrs. Schenley's Opposition to Giving Up Any of It Is Sustained—Need of School Is Manifest and Haste Advisable.

The supreme court decision, exclusively given in yesterday's Gazette, which when applied to Pittsburgh would allow councils to increase the indebtedness of the city by $1,800,000, if necessary, is being urged as a practical way of securing a site for the technical school. It was called to the attention of the councilmanic committee on site at the meeting on Tuesday by Col. Samuel Harden Church, and City Solicitor Carnahan has been asked to look it up.

His decision in the matter has, in a measure, been anticipated and the Carnegie institute trustees and members of the committee on plan and scope are confident that it will prove a practical and quick solution of the site problem.

Col. Church last night said in regard to the matter:

"At our conference with the council committee on Tuesday, after President Frew had made his kindly and earnest objection to the use of the Schenley park site, with arguments which seemed to leave no room for its further consideration, it appeared that our conference had come to a breaking off point.

"The council committee had indicated that the free park site was the only one which they could suggest, as it seemed to be the general opinion that too much time would be lost by incurring the expense and trouble of a popular election to authorize a bond issue for purchasing another site.

Quoted the Opinion.

"I then informed the conference committee that my attention had just been called by a high legal authority to a recent decision of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, in the case of Keller against the city of Scranton, in which it was held that the constitutional provision, permitting cities to incur indebtedness amounting to 2 per cent of the tax valuation without an election, and up to 7 per cent with an election, meant that the 2 per cent and the 7 per cent could be treated independently of each other, that is to say, the court held in that case that even if the city already owed 5 per cent, incurred by electoral consent, they might still incur a further debt of 2 per cent by the consent of councils.

"I recommended this to the council committee as worthy of their consideration and they immediately accepted the suggestion with approval and appointed a committee to obtain the opinion of City Solicitor Carnahan, and I am quite sure when we come together again on Friday afternoon, that it will be found that Mr. Carnahan has confirmed this construction of the law.

Park Too Small Now.

"Mr. Frew's objections to the park site seemed to me to destroy its availability. Mrs. Schenley is quoted as saying that she would not look with favor upon a petition to obtain her consent to its use for the school. The park is not nearly large enough at present for the public uses of our rapidly growing city, and instead of being cut down by the sacrifice of 50 acres for the school, it ought to be enlarged as speedily as practicable by adding to it at least 100 acres of contiguous land, for the time is rapidly approaching when such lands will be otherwise occupied.

"Mr. Carnegie has made a magnificent offer to build, equip and endow a school, which ought to be of the greatest possible benefit to the citizens for all time. Our young men, by reason of the absence of technical education, are forced to go to work in their raw unskillfulness, and the exigencies of business require that they be put to work as artisans before they have had any opportunity to become good apprentices.

Training Is Needed.

"The lack of technical training runs through our industrial life throughout the country, and it is the one great weakness in our national development. Germany has furnished us a splendid example which we ought to follow. In 1876 the German commissioner to the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition telegraphed to Prince Bismarck "Our goods are cheap and wretched." Bismarck immediately called all the states of the German empire into conference, public appropriations were made by 26 of them for the establishment of industrial schools, and the result today is that we find all over the world the trade mark "Made in Germany."

"The little republic of Switzerland has ten schools devoted to watch-making, where a four years' course is required. And this gives Switzerland her world's supremacy as a watch-maker. The same is true of her woodwork. France and Russia are both far ahead of America in their application of education to handicrafts. England, if not ahead of us, is not behind us.

Is a Generous Offer.

"Mr. Carnegie has asked Pittsburgh to furnish a site, and he will thereupon build and maintain a school which will be a splendid acquisition to the industrial power of Pittsburgh for all time. I do not believe that he ever meant that in furnishing this site, the city should wrest a part of Mrs. Schenley's park from the people who need it so badly. It is certainly a subterfuge to take shelter behind a solution like that.

"I believe an entirely suitable site could be purchased for from $400,000 to $500,000, consequently my proposition did not mean for the city to run out the full 2 per cent of its limit for this site. That it would be legal to vote the money by councils and buy the ground has been proved by this supreme court decision. There are hundreds of precedents of even a broader application of municipal funds to special uses.

"For instance, many cities in Pennsylvania have purchased lands out of municipal funds and given them to industrial establishments for building sites, surrendering all control and interest in such institutions after buildings have been once placed thereon.

Need of Haste.

"I made my proposal that councils should purchase the site by direct appropriation in the interest of time, not because I feared that a popular election would result in a negative decision. The people of Pittsburgh understand too well the opportunity which this school gives to our poor boys in fitting them for the highest opportunities of life, to reject such an institution.

"Councils have the same representative capacity as congress, and this representative capacity is vindicated by the constitution and the supreme court's construction thereof, which gives councils the right to incur debt up to 2 per cent of the valuation.

"It will be a statesmanlike and representative act for councils to provide for the purchase of such a site as the conference committee may agree upon. It will be, as Mr. Frew said the other day, undignified and humiliating for the great city of Pittsburgh to implore Mrs. Schenley to furnish the site, which the city itself is required, by the terms of Mr. Carnegie's offer, to furnish.

"It is a problem for clear-brained men to solve in a big civic way."

COMET GROWS BRIGHTER.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Dr. W. R. Brooks, director of Smith observatory and professor of astronomy at Hobart college, has had the new comet, discovered by Prof. Perrine, at the Lick observatory, under frequent observations since its discovery. When last observed it was in the lower part of Cassiopea's chair, and is moving westerly toward the northern part of Cygnus.

Dr. Brooks says the comet is increasing in brightness and is now about 20 times brighter than at discovery. On October 6 it will be about 27 times brighter than when first observed, when it will be a few degrees north of the upper star in the cross of Cygnus.

The comet will not be a brilliant object, but may be seen with the naked eye when well located and may be observed with a good field glass or small telescope.
